NO SLAYER NAMED IN VERDICT ON SWEENEY KILLING

Four Policemen Appearing as Witnesses Questioned as to Whether They Had Heard of Threats.

CONSTABLE LEVIN APPEARS AT INQUEST

He Says He Spent All of Day of Shooting at Polling Place — Election Office Denies He Served.

A Coroner's inquest today threw no new light on the killing of John P. Sweeney, lawyer-politician, who was shot to death at the southwest corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, last Friday night, and the police seem no nearer to a solution after almost three days of investigation. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict that Sweeney was killed "by a person or persons unknown to the jury."

Four policemen who testified at the inquest were asked if they had heard of threats made against Sweeney's life in Jefferson City two weeks ago and if they had heard of threats made against him by a young man in the lobby of the St. Francis Hotel a week before the shooting, which occurred near the hotel entrance. The policemen said they had not heard of these threats. The questions were prompted by detectives who said they had heard rumors of threats, but had not verified them.

The detectives today told a Post-Dispatch reporter they had abandoned their original theory that the shots which struck Sweeney were intended for Max Greenberg, an ex-convict. They said they were convinced that Sweeney, and not Greenberg, was the "marked man."

Constable Makes Appearance.

Harry Levin of 822 O'Fallon street, a Constable in Justice James P. Miles' court, went to Police Headquarters today and said he was ready to appear as an inquest witness. There had been a rumor that he was hit by one of the bullets fired at Sweeney. Examination showed Levin was not wounded.

At the inquest Levin testified that he was at the polling place at 714 Biddle street until it closed Friday night. After the election returns were made up, he said, he took them to Justice Miles' courtroom, at Blair and Cass avenues. He then went back to the polling place, he said, and later took the returns to the city hall, after which he drove down to Sixth and Chestnut streets, arriving there after the shooting.

Ralph Ortell of 411 South Broadway, testified that he was in the lobby of the St. Francis Hotel at Sixth and Chestnut streets, making out a report of the election returns from the polling place at 513 Pine street, when he heard five shots outside. He said he did not witness the shooting.

Denial Levin Was Serving.

Ortell is under indictment on a charge of having committed election frauds while a clerk of election at the last August primaries. At the Election Commissioners' office today it was said that Ortell had resigned and that neither he nor Levin served as an election official last Friday.

John Lozenzini of 3018 Locust street, who had been held by the police as a witness, testified that he knew nothing of the shooting. He said he last saw Sweeney Friday afternoon at Sixth and Market streets, when Sweeney was making a round of polling places asking how the election was going.

William O. Plummer, proprietor of a cigar store on the corner where the shooting occurred, testified that he and his cousin, Walter January, of Denison, Tex., were the only persons in the store before five shots were fired, but immediately after the shooting the store was filled with men. They said they believed 10 or 15 men were on the sidewalk when the shooting occurred. Previous reports have been that there were only six men there.

At the request of detectives Plummer was asked if men who frequented the corner had not been in the habit of leaving their revolvers in the cigar store. Plummer denied this. January gave testimony similar to Plummer's.

Carl Walker, a negro, told of seeing a man in a light overcoat run west in Chestnut street and north into an alley between Sixth and Seventh streets after the shooting.

Greenberg, an ex-convict, of 1417 Biddle street, who also was wounded in the shooting, has said that he ran west on Chestnut street to Seventh street, north to Pine street and west to Eighth street, where he went into a drug store. Several witnesses aft-

CROWDS AT FEDERAL BUILDING TO MAKE INCOME TAX RETURNS

Those Who Do Not File Them Before Tomorrow Night Must Pay Penalty for Delinquency.

As tomorrow is the last day in which State and Federal income tax returns can be made without penalty, large crowds were on hand at the city hall and Federal Building early this morning to make returns. There will be no extension of time by State or Federal officials it was announced, and any who do not make returns before the close of business tomorrow must pay a penalty for delinquency.

The Assessor's office in the city hall will be kept open until 8 o'clock tomorrow night for last-minute returns, and the department of the Collector of Internal Revenue in the Federal Building will be kept open until midnight, if necessary.

About 80,000 individuals and 8500 corporations had made State returns up to Saturday noon, and about 15,000 of these are expected to be nontaxable. It is estimated St. Louisans will pay $3,000,000 State income taxes this year, as compared with $2,300,000 last year.

About 100,000 individuals and corporations in St. Louis have made Federal returns, and about 20,000 additional are expected to make returns today and tomorrow.

The State penalty for failing to make a return is a maximum fine of $500, and the Federal penalty is 5 per cent of the taxable amount and 1 per cent additional for each month of delay.

MAN LEANING OUT OF AUTO TO LOOK AT TIRE KILLED IN FALL

East Alton Postmaster, 49 Years Old, Loses Balance When Trying to See if Tire Is Flat.

L. B. Cooper, 49 years old, Postmaster of East Alton, Ill., was fatally injured when he fell from an automobile on the St. Louis-Alton highway, five miles north of Granite City, at 8 o'clock last night. He died two hours later in a Granite City hospital.

Cooper had been visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. C. Field, in St. Louis, and was returning home with his wife, his sons, Homer and Clifford, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clifford Cooper. Members of the family said that just before the accident he remarked to his son, Clifford, who was driving, that he believed one of the rear tires was flat. He opened the door of the machine and leaned out to look at the tire. Losing his balance, he fell to the road.

Cooper's head struck the brick pavement and he was unconscious when picked up. He would have been 50 years old tomorrow.

STATE RESTS CASE IN TRIAL OF WOMAN FOR HAMON KILLING

Widow Testifies to Going Into Hotel Rooms Occupied by Her Husband and Clara Hamon.

KETCH'S TESTIMONY OVER OBJECTION

Former Business Manager Heard After Announcement He May Be Charged as Accessory After Murder.

By the Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Ok., March 14.—The State rested this afternoon in the trial of Mrs. Clara Smith Hamon, charged with the murder of Jake L. Hamon, millionaire oil operator and Republican National Committeeman from Oklahoma, and the defense began presenting its evidence.

Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, the widow, was one of the last witnesses for the State, testifying to a visit to the rooms occupied by her husband and the defendant, when Clara Hamon came in, left her gloves and hat and departed.

Ketch on Stand.

Frank L. Ketch, formerly business manager for Hamon and now administrator for his estate, went on the witness stand this morning over objection of the Assistant County Attorney, J. L. Hodge, who announced that developments Saturday were such as to indicate Ketch would be charged as an accessory after the fact of Hamon's murder. Judge Thomas W. Champion ruled Ketch should testify, however, and after he left the stand, S. P. Freeling, State Attorney-General, said that the witness, under the law, had been rendered immune by the fact he had testified.

Ketch testified that under Jake Hamon's instructions he had drawn $5000 from his personal account, given it to Clara Hamon on the day following Hamon's shooting in the hotel suite he occupied with the young woman and had told her to leave Ardmore and remain away. Ketch said Hamon at first told him that he had shot himself accidentally, and in a moment changed that statement to one that Clara Hamon had fired the bullet, and that the matter should be hushed up and Clara Hamon should be got away, as Mrs. Hamon and the children would come to Ardmore as soon as they heard of the affair.

Mrs. J. L. Hamon took the stand at 1:40 p. m. She answered questions quickly and decisively. She said that she on one occasion came to Ardmore and went to Hamon's and Clara Hamon's rooms at the hotel here.

Clara Hamon watched the witness closely as she testified.

Prosecution Rests Case.

The witness said that once when she brought her daughter, Olive Belle, 11, here from Chicago to play her violin at an entertainment, she talked with her husband and later went to the hotel rooms. She said Clara Hamon came in and threw her hat and gloves on the bed and ran out. Mrs. Hamon said she took a pistol from Clara Hamon's room on that occasion.

She said Hamon put her on a train for Chicago an hour and a half after she had seen the woman in Hamon's room. She said she saw her husband in Chicago from time to time.

The State then rested its case.

Russell B. Brown, former County Attorney, who filed the murder charge against Clara Hamon, was the first defense witness.

Brown said Frank Ketch had told him Hamon's underwear had been burned.

H. H. Brown, special prosecutor, cross-examined his younger brother.

Sheriff Garrett testified Hamon told him "he shot himself fooling with an automatic," and that Dr. Hardy had "held out to the very last it was an accident." The Sheriff said Frank Ketch had told him Hamon's underwear had been burned. Sheriff Garrett said Hamon, the day before he died, told him he had heard it rumored Clara Hamon would be prosecuted and he did not want her prosecuted; that he did the shooting himself accidentally.

The defendant was in the courtroom early. She was dressed in the blue serge suit and sailor hat she wore on the opening day of her trial.

Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, the widow, leaning on her son's arm, and in full mourning, entered the courtroom a moment before court opened.

Quotes Hamon as Accusing Woman.

Errett Dunlap, a business associate of Hamon, was called as the State's first witness of the day. He said that on Tuesday after Hamon was shot on Sunday night, Nov. 21, the wounded man had said he never would leave the sanitarium "until you boys take me out."

"He told me he went over to his room late in the evening, threw off

PACKING HOUSE EMPLOYES AT WORK AT REDUCED WAGE

Members of Various Unions in Leading Centers Decide to Await Outcome of Mediation and Strike Vote.

MASS MEETINGS IN HALF DOZEN CITIES

Armour & Co. Requests Employes to Take Steps to Form an Industrial Democracy.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Armour & Co. today called an election in all of its plants for tomorrow for the employes to elect representatives to form an industrial democracy in which employers and employes would have equal representation and which would settle all matters of working conditions, wages and hours in the Armour plants.

The outline of the proposed plan as given out by Armour & Co. said that when the representatives of employer and employe could not agree on any matter, the question could be referred to an arbitrator.

J. Ogden Armour, in a statement accompanying the announcement of the industrial democracy plan, said the meat packing industry "had reached a situation where there must be greater co-operation between employers and employes."

"The directors of the company have decided to establish a medium whereby matters of mutal interest to the employes and the company may be discussed and adjusted," the statement said. "To properly exercise this function, the employes must learn and recognize the responsibility that the business has to the public and its limitations in the matter of providing for the needs of both its owners and the workers."

Characterized as "Bunk."

Dennis Lane, secretary of the Amalgamated Order of Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, characterized the Armour announcement as "bunk."

"The public will not be deceived by this attempt to slip one over on the employes," he said, "nor will the men be confused or stand for it."

While awaiting the outcome of mediation plans and the result of a strike vote, employes in the packing plants of Chicago and their leading branches in the Middle West decided to go to work today under the reduced wage scale announced by the five leading packers, which goes into effect today. More than 100,000 men are affected by the reductions of 15 and 12½ per cent in the hourly rate and piece-work rate, respectively, with time and a half for overtime only after 10 hours.

"Any assumption that we are attempting to establish a 10-hour day is wrong," said a statement from Armour & Co. today in answer to charges of union leaders. "The whistle in the Armour plants will continue to blow at the end of eight hours' work each day."

Mass Meetings Held.

At mass meetings held in half a dozen packing centers yesterday, the workers were advised to remain at work until the strike vote was completed, which it was said here would be about Friday. Union leaders suggested Friday, March 18, as the date for the proposed conference in Washington of representatives of employers and employes with James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

"Our cut in wages is small when compared to other firms," said the statement of Armour & Co. "We have a list of 21 other firms reducing wages where the decreases ran from 14.25 to 33.34 per cent. The stockholders of Armour & Co. could not dodge the fact that we are losing money. That is why wages are reduced.

"Any assertion that we are attempting to establish a 10-hour day is wrong. The guarantee of extra pay for overtime after 54 hours in any one week makes this impossible. The butcher workmen in this industry are entitled to 48 hours' wages earnings per week, and the adjustment in the hours of labor is to enable them to get it. The average working time in the killing gangs in the past year has been 42 hours. Under the new arrangement a worker will be able to earn a substantial increase."

Action in Other Cities.

Thousands of packing-house employes marched in the rain here yesterday afternoon, and later listened to outdoor speeches of union leaders, who urged them not to start a "runaway strike."

Packing-house employes in Fort Worth, Tex.; Kansas City, Kan., and Sioux City, Ia., also decided at mass meetings yesterday to go to work today pending completion of the strike vote. Employes in the Omaha plants

We know you. We would gladly recognize you and be honored in having an esteemed representative as you, but the diplomatic relations at present existing between our Government and yours do not permit us recognizing you. OPPOSITION TO COL. HARVEY AS AMBASSADOR

WAS ORIGINAL WILSON MAN

Some Republicans Base Opposition on This Although the Colonel Became Severe Critic of Wilson.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921.)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Protests against the appointment of Col. George Harvey as American Ambassador to Great Britain have been pouring into the White House as well as to men in Congress who are presumed to have influence with President Harding. These protests seem to be based upon the idea that, without reflecting upon Col. Harvey, some distinguished American whose Republicanism was based on service to the party other than mere criticism of the Wilson administration might be given the place. The protesting Republicans insist that there are other men in the Republican party much more closely identified with Republican tradition and foreign policy who ought to be considered.

Strangely enough, after all that Col. Harvey has written to remove any taint of Wilsonism from his make-up, it is still remembered that he was the original Wilson man and they cannot forgive Col. Harvey's original sin—the creation of Wilson—much as he has done in the last few years to atone for the same.

Broadly speaking, the opposition to Col. Harvey's appointment is the most sensational incident of the Harding administration thus far. Whether or not he is appointed, the true story of why he was selected will ever be a source of curiosity. It is known that the leaders in the Senate have not asked for the appointment. It is known that some of them, while admitting Col. Harvey's brilliance, question whether he is temperamentally fit for the post.

Politics Also Enter Into Situation.

Politics enters into it somewhat, too, for the writer has it on reliable authority that Col. Harvey is not considered by President Harding as one responsible for the nomination at Chicago last June. It will be recalled that many published reports said that Col. Harvey helped nominate Warren Harding. There is good reason to believe that President Harding held a contrary view as to how he was nominated and that he still believes Col. Harvey was much more interested in the candidacy of Will Hays than anybody else at Chicago.

Col. Harvey and William Boyce Thompson, the man who was chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican finance organization, are intimate friends. Mr. Thompson has been largely concerned with ways and means of making up the campaign deficit and he is a power in Republican circles just now. But the point is that Col. Harvey comes from a wing of the Republican party which has not always been considered the "original Harding" wing. Nevertheless, this bit of friction has been to a large extent patched up, and the fact that Col. Harvey has been virtually decided upon for the Ambassadorship to Great Britain is taken as proof positive that Warren Harding has forgiven such activity as Col. Harvey manifested against him at Chicago.

There is another question involved in the Harvey appointment. It is the future of Harvey's Weekly, which has been so bitterly critical of the Wilson administration that unless it were to adopt a similar role toward the Harding administration, it would have to proceed on an altogether new line of tactics—a defensive and apologetic role. Some of my British friends who are curious to know the reasons for the appointment say they have been told Mr. Harding is as eager to have Harvey's Weekly discontinued as others in the Republican party are anxious that it should be continued. These latter folks think Col. Harvey ought to be on the job to answer Democratic criticisms.

Probable British Attitude.

If these were normal times, the British Government would decline to accept Col. Harvey because of his anti-British writings, but every bit of information available here indicates that Great Britain will not make an issue over the appointment, but will accept the distinguished author without protest.

Col. Harvey became very close to Mr. Harding during the latter part of the summer at Marion. He is cred-

SIX PRISONERS HANGED IN DUBLIN; CROWD OF 20,000 OUTSIDE JAIL

ELECTION BOARD TO INVESTIGATE VOTE IN PRIMARY

Decision Follows Conference With Circuit Attorney Who Says Poll Officials May Be Put Under Oath.

The Board of Election Commissioners today announced it had decided to start an investigation as to frauds in last Friday's primary election. This decision was reached after the board had conferred with Circuit Attorney Sidener, who advised the board that it had the legal right to put election officials on their oath as to the correctness of their returns and to prosecute them for perjury if a subsequent count of ballots showed they had sworn falsely.

The conference followed receipt of a message from Attorney-General Barrett, in which he gave the opinion that the board had the authority to open and check precinct tally sheets and examine officials, challengers and watchers who were on duty election day as to the correctness of these returns.

The Circuit Attorney told the board it would have the same authority as a court to put election officials under oath to tell the truth, and violation of this oath would be perjury.

In a statement after the conference the board said it would investigate certain precincts and further announcement as to what precinct these would be will be made later. It is known the first investigation will be made in precincts where great disparity was shown between the vote of the two leading candidates, indicating that votes were thrown to one and taken from the other.

The board cannot at this time open ballot boxes, but a case involving its right to do so is pending in the Supreme Court. In case the right is granted the tally sheets could be compared with the ballots in the boxes.

Men Were Convicted of Complicity in Killing of British Intelligence Officers and Crown Troops.

ALL BUSINESS SUSPENDED IN CITY

Postoffice and Telegraph Service Closed Down During Hanging of Men in Pairs, an Hour Apart.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 14.—Six prisoners convicted of complicity in the killing of British Intelligence Officers and members of the crown forces in Ireland were executed in Mount Joy Prison, this city, this morning. The men were hanged in pairs at intervals of an hour.

Twenty thousand persons gathered outside the prison during the hours that the executions were going on and all work in the city stopped until 11 o'clock. Even the postoffice was closed and telegraph service was suspended.

The scene in front of the prison was impressive, the crowd assembling at dawn and by 6 o'clock the prison yard was packed. An hour later the crowd had filled the roadway leading to the prison and all the streets. An altar had been improvised near the doors and on the walls and trees in the prison yard sacred images and pictures had been placed.

Burning Candles Held Up.

Everywhere candles were burned, scores of persons in the heart of the dense throng holding them aloft throughout the long vigil. Here and there priests or women led in prayers or hymns in which everyone joined earnestly. Hundreds kneeling in the roadway were forced to rise when an armored car forced its way through the crowd. From 5 o'clock this morning it had moved back and forth in front of the prison.

On the roof of the jail, overlooking the entrance, a cast iron sentry box had been erected overnight from which a soldier kept careful watch on the crowd.

Two of the men executed, Patrick Moran and Thomas Whelan, were charged with complicity in the killing of intelligence officers in Dublin on Nov. 21, last. The other four men, Frank Flood, Bernard Ryan, Thomas Bryan and Patrick Doyle, were accused of participating in an ambush near here in January in which one member of the attacking party was killed.

Poster Announces Executive.

It was not until 8:20 that the crowd knew the fate of the prisoners. At that time the following notice was posted outside the jail gates:

"The sentence of the law passed on Thomas Whelan and Patrick Moran, found guilty of murder, and on Thomas Bryan, Patrick Doyle, Frank Flood and Bernard Ryan, found guilty of high treason in levying war, has been carried into execution."

Hourly, beginning at 6 o'clock, the rosary was recited. But for a number of reverend voices and the occasional sob of a woman, profound silence was maintained.

After the notice was posted the vast gathering dispersed silently, many later attending the funeral of Patrick Doyle's twin baby. Mrs. Doyle, with the other twin in her arms, visited her husband yesterday to say good-by.

Mrs. Bryan, who was taken suddenly ill before her husband's sentence was confirmed, was not told until yesterday that he was to be executed today.

Air of Expectation.

The atmosphere of the city is one of anxiety and expectation of developments to follow the hangings. Except for a few lorry loads of military, on the alert with rifles at "the ready," there was a conspicuous absence of crown forces on the streets today and not an unarmed soldier was visible.

There was a striking demonstration here yesterday in protest against the execution. Banners bearing such legends as "England Murders the Innocent in Vengeance," were borne through the streets in a procession arranged by women. The procession started at noon and the paraders marched in military order in defiance of the military regulations. They received constant accessions from women and girls coming out of the churches and also were joined by

RAIL LABOR BOARD ASKS 4 HEADS OF ROADS TO TESTIFY

Request Follows Refusal of Unions to Proceed With Testimony Unless Executives Are Called.

HEARING WILL BE WEDNESDAY MORNING

One Official Ordered to Bring Minutes and Records of Discussions of National Agreements.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 14.—The Railroad Labor Board today requested four railroad heads to appear before it Wednesday morning to testify in the hearing over the national agreements. The men summoned are T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railroad Executives; W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania; Carl R. Gray president of the Union Pacific, and R. S. Binkerd, assistant to Cupler.

The decision to summon the men was made in executive session after Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the four brotherhoods, had refused to go on with rebuttal testimony unless the witnesses were called.

The board ordered Binkerd to bring with him the minutes, letters, recommendations and other records having to do with the proceedings of the Labor Committee of the Association of Railroad Executives which discussed the dispute over national agreements.

Walsh told the board at the opening of today's session that he was "greatly surprised to find that his request for subpenas had not been complied with" and added that it was useless for the labor side to go on with its testimony. The testimony of the railroad heads was essential to a fair hearing, he said.

Walsh referred to the labor situation in the packing industry, charging that the packers had "joined with the Morgans and Garys and railroad heads in a concerted attempt to ruin labor unions forever."

The board adjourned at 10:25 a. m. and went into executive session to consider Walsh's statements. Two of the men the labor side wanted called were present at the hearing, but Walsh refused to put them on the stand. He said he wanted to question others first in a certain order.

Investigation Favored.

Seven officers of railway labor organizations, including President Jewell of the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor, last night wired United States Senator Cummins of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, indorsing the Senator's proposal for a congressional investigation of the transportation situation, and requesting that railroad labor organizations be given a hearing in the event of such an inquiry. The message charged that nine men control and have dictated the policy of all the railways of the country in the wage question.

"Railroad labor stands for industrial peace and evolution, and not industrial warfare and revolution," the message concluded.

MANAGER QUOTES HAMON AS SAYING WOMAN SHOT HIM

Dunlap quoted Hamon as having said: "I had been there only a short time when I heard Clara come in. She laid her left hand on my head and I felt her right on my shoulder, when she shot me."

"Of course, I have been looking for this," Dunlap quoted Hamon as having said.. The reply was objected to and sustained.

"He said he did not have a chance to protect himself; that she walked up to the foot of the bed and shot him," Dunlap further quoted Hamon after counsel had argued the propriety of his testimony.

On cross examination, Dunlap was asked if he had made any report to the County Attorney or Sheriff, and said he had not.

He admitted he had had two or three conferences with the prosecution, but denied he had stated he had "taken charge of the prosecution."

Dunlap denied Hamon had presented him with the home in which the Dunlap family lives. He said he was not present when Clara Hamon was furnished $5000 with which to leave town.

Dunlap said he had not asked the County Attorney to dismiss the case, stating there was "nothing to it." He said he had asked that a statutory charge filed at the same time against Hamon and the woman be dismissed.

Ketch to Be Named Accessory.

Frank L. Ketch, former business manager for Hamon and now administrator of the estate, was the next witness called.

J. L. Hodge, Assistant County Attorney, arose and said Ketch would be charged with being an accessory after the fact in the murder of Hamon, and asked that Ketch be prevented from testifying, as giving testimony would give him immunity. Judge Champion ruled the witness could proceed, however, after Hodge had made a long statement, and Attorney-General Freeling undertook direct examination.

Ketch said he first learned of the shooting of Hamon on Monday morning after he was shot on Sunday.

"Frank, I am never going to get well," he quoted Hamon as saying at the hospital.

"'Jake, where is she?' were the first words I said to him," Ketch testified.

"'I did it myself,' he said," Ketch continued.

"'Don't tell me that,' I replied."

Reference to Money for Woman.

"I want it given out I did it myself. Give Clara some money and have her get away," he quoted Hamon as saying.

"'My wife will be here as soon as she hears of this, and I want Clara to go. Tell the world any kind of a story, that I dropped the gun; anything.'"

Ketch said he wrote his personal check for $5000, gave the money to Clara Hamon and later reimbursed himself from Hamon's money with a voucher, as he had been authorized to do. He said he went back to the office and sent for Clara Hamon.

"Clara, you've got to go. I've never interfered with your personal business or that of Jake, but the parting of the ways has come. You are going away and you are going to stay." Ketch said he told her.

"I was going away," Clara Hamon said, according to Ketch.

"You are going now," Ketch said he replied.

Ketch said she told him she had to go to see her relatives at Wilson before she went away and that he should pack her trunk for her. The trunks were checked to Kansas City on Jake Hamon's pass, but Clara Hamon missed the train and he gave her a package containing $5000.

They decided, he said, she would take the next train to Durant and a train over another railroad to Kansas City.

Ketch said he told the woman he did not think Hamon would recover, although at that time he himself thought Hamon would recover.

Defense's objection prevented Ketch from saying why he said that.

Reference to Struggle.

From Durant Clara Hamon talked with him, Ketch said, and he told her not to go north, but south, and "keep going."

Ketch said he saw no marks on her hands or face. The witness said he reported to Hamon what he had done, but defense objected to the testimony and the Court sustained it.

"On Tuesday he said, 'Frank, don't forget I am never going to get well,'" Ketch quoted Hamon as saying. "She shot me in my room in the dark," he said Hamon declared. "He didn't say anything about how he was lying, but said something about a struggle for the gun," he testified.

Ketch said he delivered the suit he thought Hamon had on when shot, to Sheriff Garret. Ketch denied he had told Garret the underclothing and shirt were burned. He said he told the Sheriff "some boys have taken them."

"I have not," Ketch replied to questions as to whether he did not feel bitter toward the defendant and if he had not been active in the prosecution.

The witness said Clara Hamon had a three-hundred and twenty-thousandth interest in an oil lease; 5-70 interest in a gas lease, a good property, from which her income was $400 or $500; and that Clara Hamon and he owned a picture show at Healdton. She also has $5000 worth of another oil company's stock. He said Hamon had given her a 10-carat diamond.

Ketch said Clara Hamon had drawn one $125 dividend on oil company stock since Hamon's death.

Dr. Walter Hardy, recalled explained the bullet which killed Hamon entered his body at an angle. The defense has contended the bullet too such a course.

On cross-examination Ketch said Clara Hamon still had some investments jointly with Hamon, and some business interests, and had a small revenue from the Hamon estate. "She has no assignment," Ketch said, and her income was credited against drilling expense for another well she now owes.

A contract, dated Ardmore, Jan. 27, 1916, was identified by Ketch. It follows:

"For and in consideration of $1 and other valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, I hereby release any and all claims that I have or may have against Jake L. Hamon and this is in settlement in full hand for relations heretofore existing between us, and claims for money. Clara Smith."

J. H. Edwards of Topeka, Kan., president of the Kansas Life Insurance Co., at the afternoon session, identified an application for insurance signed by Clara Hamon, saying she was born Oct. 22, 1891, the application having been signed in January, 1917. The age of the defendant has been a point of contention. Ketch, recalled, identified as having been written by Clara Hamon two letters and a contract.

Defense counsel decided today that Clara Hamon would be the last defense witness.

PANAMA AND COSTA RICA SEND NOTES TO LEAGUE

Telegrams by Republics in Frontier Dispute Published—Mediation by U. S. Accepted.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, March 14.—The League of Nations has published dispatches exchanged between Panama and Costa Rica and Sir Eric Drummond, general secretary of the league, in which the two republics notified Sir Eric that they had accepted mediation by the United States in their frontier dispute and that hostilities have ceased. Sir Eric, in replying, expresed the pleasure of the council of the League of Nations at the mediation of the United States, which, he said, seemed a good way of bringing about a settlement of difficulties of two league members.

Panama and Costa Rica each hold the other entirely responsible for the difficulty along the border between the two republics.

Costa Rica's Message.

Costa Rica's telegram to Sir Eric said:

"Thanks to the mediation of the United States, the conflict between Costa Rica and Panama has virtually terminated.

"Panama had not only refused to accept the arbitration decision dictated by the Chief Justice of the United States on the question of frontiers, but since that date had invaded further territory.

"The Government of Costa Rica, after having called the attention of the Government of Panama to this invasion, sent a detachment of 25 men to Coto, situated 25 kilometers on this side of the frontier line traced on the slope of the Pacific by the decision of President Loubet, Sept. 11, 1900, and confirmed by the treaty of March 17, 1910.

"This detachment was captured, as well as another of the same strength. A third detachment of 65 men, sent to the rescue of the first two, was cruelly massacred by Panaman forces of highly superior number. The President of Panama issued a proclamation calling the people to arms; Costa Rican citizens were attacked in the streets and the escutcheons of our consulates were torn down by the crowds.

Reprisals by Costa Rica.

"Costa Rica then saw herself obliged to exercise just reprisals and occupied the port of Almirante on March 4. It was then that the Government at Washington offered its mediation, which was accepted.

"The Government of Costa Rica insists on making known that Panaman citizens residing in Costa Rica have been scrupulously respected and that the conduct of the Costa Rican troops has been perfect in the invaded Panaman territory. The Government of Costa Rica puts upon the Government of Panama full responsibility for the conflict.

"ALEJANDRO ALVAREDO QUIROZ, Minister of Foreign Relations."

Sir Eric Drummond's reply addressed to Minister Quiroz, says:

"Your telegram was immediately communicated to the members of the council. The President of the council is happy to learn that the Government of Costa Rica has accepted mediation of the United States, and he feels that the contention between Panama and Costa Rica is in the way of settlement. He does not doubt that a definite agreement will be reached shortly between the two states, members of the League of Nations, in conformity with the spirit of the covenant. The council will be happy to be kept informed of any new developments."

Telegram From Panama.

The telegram from Panama to the Secretary-General, received, says:

"During the night of March 7 all the troops of Costa Rica that invaded the Panaman province of Bócas del Toro on the Atlantic side embarked for Costa Rica. As soon as it received the news, the Government of Panama ordered the retirement of its troops, which had occupied the district of Coto on the Pacific side, where the first attack of the Costa Ricans occurred, but leaving there civil and political authorities according to the terms of mediation.

"Hostilities are suspended. I reiterate my telegram of March 7, in which I indicated the general conditions of our acceptance of mediation by the United States, but I add an essential condition—refusal by the republic of Panama to accept the terms of the White arbitration, which, after encountering the opposition of the legislative and executive powers and public opinion in 1914, is today rejected by the same authorities, and furthermore by all the municipalities of the republic consulted on the subject by the executive powers.

Question of Indemnity.

"The republic of Panama reserves the right during mediation to establish and substantiate the responsibility incurred by Costa Rica by reason of her aggression and also to demand indemnity for the expenses of the defensive expeditions Panama was obliged to organize and equip.

"Costa Rican prisoners and wounded are being treated in a manner conforming with international conventions which Panama has signed and to which she confirmed, and as is proper in a chivalrous country.

"GARAY,
"Secretary of Foreign Relations."

The Secretary-General replied to the Panaman Minister as follows:

"Your telegram, which reached Paris March 11, has been received at Geneva and distributed to the Council. The President of the Council has already expressed to the Government of Costa Rica his satisfaction at learning of the honorable settlement of the conflict which is under way, according to the spirit of the covenant. He is happy to know that your Government shares this sentiment and that the troops have retired on both sides."

Costa Rica Dismantles Telegraph Line on Border.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, March 14.—The Costa Rican Government has dismantled the telegraph line on the Panaman border. The legality of this line has been disputed by the Panamanian Government in the present boundary dispute.

GERMANS PROTEST TO LEAGUE AGAINST ACTION OF ALLIES

Government Addresses Note to Secretariat in Opposition to Reparation Penalties Put in Force.

DR. SIMONS OPPOSES BREAK WITH ALLIES

Foreign Secretary Says in Reichstag That Demands Are Due to Distress and Not Lust for Power.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 14.—The Government has addressed a note to the secretariat of the League of Nations, protesting against the penalties being enforced by the Entente for Germany's nonfulfillment of her reparations obligations.

German Position Could Not Be Improved by Breach, Says Simons.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 14.—Dr. Walter Simons, the Foreign Secretary, gave to the Reichstag Saturday an elaborate exposition of the recent reparations conference in London. The tone of the speech was noticeable for its extreme moderation. The speaker appeared to question whether the allied demands had been rightly estimated in Germany.

"I must say," Dr. Simons declared, "that when one comes face to face with our opponents in London; when one hears what the situation is in their countries and under what distress and cares they themselves are laboring, it becomes clear that their demands are not inspired merely by the intoxication of victory or lust for power, but that on the contrary they are the result of extraordinarily heavy troubles and distress in their own countries."

While stoutly maintaining the alleged illegality of the penalties, he declared he was strongly opposed to rupturing relations with the allies because "our position in the world is not such that it could be improved by a breach." Dr. Simons admitted that it was possible to get a better world perspective from London than from Berlin and thereby realize how general the opinion is that Germany is in the wrong and has not done enough to requite that wrong.

"If we now resorted to severe measures," said Dr. Simons, this would only be regarded as confirmation of that opinion, and we should lose all that good-will we so sorely need to extricate us from our great difficulties."

Dr. Simons described the proposed levy on German goods as "a gross blunder for the allies themselves," because, he declared, it would drive trade with Germany into the hands of speculators and hopelessly impede the formidable task of restoring international exchange, which it would be impossible to do until the question of stabilizing German exchange was solved.

"In my opinion," said the Foreign Secretary, "the allied tactics will soon show themselves to be what they are—a politico-financial Utopia and economic nonsense."

45 RUSSIAN REBELS PUT TO DEATH AT ORDERS OF TROTZKY

Chief Officer of the Flying Station at Oranienbaum One of Those Reported Executed.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, March 14.—Advices from Helsingfors today state that the fortress of Krasnaya Gorka has been recaptured from the Russian revolutionaries by the soviet troops and the garrison now consists chiefly of a cadet corps.

Leon Trotzky, the soviet War Minister, has ordered big howitzers to Oranienbaum, on the Gulf of Finland opposite Kronstadt, after executing M. Kolesov, chief officer of the flying station, and 44 other rebels, the advices say.

The Moscow uprising is reported to have been quelled after the severest street fighting.

Conditions in Kronstadt are said to be serious, owing to lack of food, none having been received from the American Red Cross or the Finnish relief depots. Because of the large civilian population, which includes 700 children, the garrison's rations are extremely scanty.

HOUSE PASSES TAX PROPOSALS

Amendments Would Prevent Attacks on Legality of Certain Levies.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—The House today passed two joint and concurrent resolutions proposing amendments to the State Constitution to authorize the collection of motor vehicle license, excise, corporation franchise, income and occupation taxes and inspection and registration fees. These amendments are desired to prevent attacks upon collection of these taxes, such as now are in progress in the courts against the corporation franchise and beverage inspection taxes. These resolutions now will have to go to the Senate.

Three Men Hold Up Railway Office.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 14.—Three masked men stole a sum of money estimated to be between $1000 and $1200 in the holdup of a branch office of the Kansas City Western Railway Co. in Kansas City, Kan., this morning. The Kansas City Western is a trolley line running between here and Leavenworth, Kan.

NEGRO SAID TO ADMIT KILLING WOMAN ORGANIST

Body Found Short Distance From Home in Perth Amboy, N. J., Mud Showing Signs of Struggle.

STAINS ON CLOTHING LEAD TO THE ARREST

Alleged Confession Given Out After Several Hours of Grilling—Shock Said to Have Caused Death.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., March 14.—George Washington Knight, a negro, 22 years old, today confessed he had attacked Mrs. Edith Wilson, church organist, who was murdered near her home Saturday night, according to the police.

Knight was arrested this morning at Keyport, N. J., brought here and closely questioned. His alleged confession was given out after several hours of grilling.

The fact that his clothing was bloodstained, the police declared, led to his arrest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The body of Mrs. Edith Marshall Wilson, the pretty church organist and music teacher was found on a vacant lot near her home at Perth Amboy, N. J., Saturday night, after she had been strangled and beaten.

The death of Mrs. Wilson was caused by her shock and fright while struggling with her assailant, it was announced by Dr. John L. Suydam, county physician, who performed the autopsy. He declared a hemorrhage of the left lobe of the brain, which produced bleeding through the ears, was caused by emotion consequent upon the attack. Dr. Suydam contradicted a previous report made by Coroner Edward Hanson that Mrs. Wilson's skull had been fractured. The woman's body was still warm when found in the soft mud.

Recalls Another Murder.

The character of the attack on Mrs. Wilson led the police to believe it may have been committed by the same man who killed Mrs. Jennie Kussell of Jersey City last October under similar circumstances in the woods near West New Brighton, S. I. The murder of Mrs. Kussell, who was 24 years old and the mother of several children, never has been solved.

The four men arrested yesterday in the investigation of the Wilson murder have now all been released, the last having been set free today. Lieut. Long said he had not heard from Mrs. Wilson's husband, who is on a business trip in the West.

Woman's Purse Snatched.

Indications that the slayer may have robbed another young woman following his attack on Mrs. Wilson were discovered today by the Perth Amboy police.

Miss Fannie Miller, 24 years old, who lives at Princess Boy, Staten Island, reported that she was on her way to the ferry to Tottenville shortly after midnight Saturday when, at Smith street and Wallack's lane, Perth Amboy, a man leaped at her. He snatched her purse containing $12 and fled just as a policeman appeared.

The man in his flight dropped his hat and this is the only tangible clew so far obtained by the police. It was a soft hat and dark. The robbery of Miss Miller occurred several hours later than the police decided Mrs. Wilson was killed. Mrs. Wilson, 26 years old, had attended a picture show with Miss Sue Franke, who said good-night to her at 9:20.

GERMANY TO DISBAND ALL CIVILIAN GUARD ORGANIZATIONS

Opposition of Bavaria to Move Threatens to Bring About Clash With Government.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 14.—The Federal Council yesterday adopted the Government's draft law providing for the definite dissolution of all German civilian guards and self-defense organizations. Bavaria's seven votes were the only ones cast in opposition to the measure. This threatens to bring to a head the long-expected clash between the central Government and Bavaria, which stubbornly opposes the breaking up of the powerful system of Einwohnerwehr and local committees formed to maintain law and order.

The Bavarian Government has declared that the measure is not demanded by reasons of foreign relations, and that its enforcement will seriously threaten internal unity. The representative of Bavaria claimed that neither the Versailles treaty nor the Spa agreement obligate Germany to dissolve her self-defense organization.

The bill will now go to the Reichstag, where it is said a safe majority awaits it.

thousands of citizens. There was no interference from the police.

Reaching Mount Joy Prison, the women lined up two deep along the prison wall and planted their banners opposite the gates. Then they knelt and recited the rosary, after which they silently dispersed.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin and Father O'Flanagan visited the condemned men yesterday. They reported that they were facing their fate with composure. Throughout Saturday night the condemned men sang Irish songs. Moran, one of the six, could have escaped with Frank Teeling from the Kilmainham jail some time ago but he refused this chance, saying he was innocent of the crime charged against him and would be released.

The Lord Mayor wired King George asking him to stop the executions. Premier Lloyd George offered to consider a reprieve of Moran if new evidence in his case could be presented. Whelan, another of the six, has two brothers in the United States, one of them in the army.

Sinn Fein Plot to Import Gunmen From U. S. Charged.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 14.—The Daily Graphic this morning claims that a Sinn Fein plot is on foot to import from the United States a number of young men of Irish nationality, "adepts in acts of violence." "These gunmen," the newspaper declared, "are expected shortly, elaborately disguised." Certain members of the Cabinet and other prominent men have been marked by the expected visitors, the newspaper says.

ST. CLAIR BANK ROBBERY CASE CALLED FOR TRIAL

Eight Men Indicted Jointly Take Severance in Circuit Court at Union, Mo.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNION, Mo., March 14.—The trial of eight men on a charge of second degree burglary and larceny in connection with the theft of $12,222.67 in Liberty bonds, War Savings certificates and stamps and cash from the safety deposit vault of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank of St. Clair, Franklin County, last Feb. 1, was called before Judge Bruer here today. The information was issued against the men jointly. They took severances and court adjourned until afternoon, pending determination of who should be tried first.

The men are Joseph Brown, Rob- eredge") Schneider, Charles Bar- ert ("Cokey") Walsh, Emil ("Feath- rington, Walter Casey, George Ayers, John Maloney and Tom Montgomery. All were in court except Barrington. His right hand and a portion of the foream were blown off the day following the burglary when the men were captured in a house known as "Fly's Nest," on the Meramec River near Pacific, Mo. A bottle of nitroglycerin in his hand exploded. Barrington was permitted to remain at the county farm near Union. The others except Casey were brought from the St. Louis city jail yesterday. Casey was at liberty on a $5000 bond. A sign on the Union jail, put up after the arrival of the prisoners, reads: "Keep away from this jail to avoid danger."

The names of Maloney and Casey appear first in the information, but their counsel advanced reasons why they should not be tried at this time. Schneider is the third named. Walter Kelly, a blind lawyer of St. Louis, representing Schneider, asked for a continuance on the ground of his own ill health. The Judge ordered him to proceed and the selection of a jury was begun.

Assistant State's Attorney Lindauer of Belleville, Ill., is here to make demand for Brown and Walsh in the event they plead guilty. They face murder charges in Illinois.

The penalty for second degree burglary is from two to 25 years, and for larceny from two to five years.

HOSIERY SALESMAN HELD AS SWINDLER WHO USED "ADS"

Man Giving Name as Albert Schellenberg Arrested Under Woodpile at 5263 Vernon Avenue.

TAKEN ON COMPLAINT OF FRUIT DEALER

Keeper of Store on Union Boulevard Says He Gave Man Money to Deposit, and Balance Was Short.

A squad of policemen who went yesterday to 5263 Vernon avenue, looking for a bold, alluring fellow whom they have known by repute as "the advertising swindler," found a trembling hosiery salesman hiding in the wood pile in the cellar. When dragged forth, he gave the name of Albert B. Schellenberg, and complained querulously that he was not guilty of all the thefts attributed to him.

He was arrested on complaint of Louis Middleman, who runs a fruit stand at 1138 Union boulevard, just around the corner from where Schellenberg roomed. Middleman complained that "Mr. Schell" was around the fruit stand a good deal, so he entrusted him several times with money to deposit at the bank. When his bank book was balanced Saturday, it was found that there were several false entries in it.

"I lost $262 of the money," Schellenberg said plaintively. "I was afraid to tell Middleman, and I tried to make it up by deducting sums from the other deposits to substitute for the money I lost." Middleman said, however, that the discrepancy was more than $500.

Woman Identifies Him.

Mrs. Naomi Rogers of 3936 Delmar boulevard was called to the Page Boulevard Station to see him. She had previously told of an engaging stranger who called at her home Wednesday and Thursday, after she had answered his advertisement for jewelry, and who, while she was out of the room, made off with a box containing valuables worth $2140.

She gazed incredulously at the shrinking and unshaven Schellenberg. "Well, I never!" she exclaimed. "For a minute I didn't think it was you."

"Now look here, lady," said the prisoner. "You know I didn't get anything from you but a ring, and I gave you a check for that." She looked him over with grim distaste. "You mean you tried to give me a check that I wouldn't take," she said. "Where's my ring?"

Admits Pawning Ring.

"I pawned it," he returned plaintively. "I only got $100 on it. And to think that you tried to sell it to me for $450!" Later, to reporters, he continued: "I think these people ought to be ashamed of themselves. Here this woman accuses me of taking over $2000 worth of jewelry, when all I got was one little ring."

It was suggested that $100 was a rather fair return on the 60 cents which he invested in the want ad that led to the swindle. "Yes, but look where I am now," he said. "Look at the disgrace. I never have any luck. Everybody is down on me. Middleman has a grudge against me, or he wouldn't have had me arrested."

He said he had been out of work recently, and while looking through the advertisements for a job, he saw where Mrs. Harry C. Clanby of 5619A Maple avenue, had advertised a shotgun for sale. He went there, gave her a bogus check for the gun, which he sold, he said.

Tells of Advertising.

"I saw that other people would answer my ads just as I had answered others," he said, "so I advertised that I would buy jewelry, intending to give them bogus checks." He said that Mrs. Rogers was the first to answer him, but she says that she refused to take his check, and that he came back the following day and disappeared with the jewelry while she was answering the telephone. He insisted today that he did give her a check, and got nothing but the ring.

Schellenberg and his wife occupied a furnished room at the Vernon avenue address. He said he formerly was employed as salesman here by a New York manufacturer of hosiery.

er the shooting told policemen Greenberg was not the man described by Walker as having run into an alley east of Seventh street. Greenberg was shot in the right cheek. He was taken to the city hospital and later to St. John's Hospital, where it was said today that his condition was considered serious, owing to danger of complications. His physicians will not permit reporters to talk to him. It is planned to operate on him tomorrow.

Sweeney was buried this morning in Calvary Cemetery, following funeral services at St. Matthew's Church, Kennerly avenue and Sarah street, at 9 o'clock.

SEVERAL FORMER BURKHAM BACKERS NOW FOR BYRNES

Democratic Nominee for Mayor Receives Acceptances From Business Men to Serve on His Committee

ON JOB AT HIS OFFICE AS USUAL

Says Kiel Is Companionable Person, but a Little Too Expensive as a Public Official.

James W. Byrnes, Democratic nominee for Mayor, today received numerous postal card acceptances from business men who have been invited to serve as members of his campaign committee. Several of these were supporters of Robert Burkham in the Republican primary, and following Burkham's defeat, have decided to support Byrnes against Mayor Kiel, Republican candidate for a third term. Byrnes is running on a pledge of a non-partisan and non-political city administration, of business efficiency.

"Since Bob can't be Mayor, I'm for you," one of the former Burkham supporters wrote.

The personnel of the Byrnes campaign committee will be announced in a few days.

At Business as Usual.

Byrnes was carrying on business as usual this morning, in his establishment at 2109 Locust street.

"Good morning," he said when a Post-Dispatch reporter called. "Are the members of the Kiel family still on the city payroll? They are? That's good.

"Henry Kiel is a fine fellow," he continued. "He's a big, good-natured boy, and a most companionable person. I would like to go fishing with him some time. But as a public official, he's a little too expensive.

"I have been reading the City Charter carefully in the last few days. I wish it were more generally known and read. It is not only a business document, but it is an intensely human document. Only by careful reading of the Charter can one understand the extent of the power which is wielded by the Mayor.

Gives Views of Charter.

"The charter contemplates that the Mayor shall be a competent man; one fearless and unprejudiced, who realizes that he is the Mayor of all the people. A Mayor who does not meet these requirements does not harmonize with the charter.

"The charter is a textbook of what a Mayor should be, not only in its binding effect on his actions, but in its suggestion of the city's future development. The Mayor, if he is a man of vision, will see St. Louis in its big sense, written between the lines of the charter.

"With the charter supported by public sentiment, a Mayor should have no trouble in carrying out its provisions. If a proposal which is right meets resistance, the Mayor should open the doors and go to the public.

"The charter, carried out diligently, would add much to the contentment of the city, and to the pleasure and prosperity of its inhabitants. The Department of Public Welfare, in particular, bears on the human side of life, and with the every-day life of the average person."

Interest in Byrnes' Platform.

The directors of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association have prepared, to be submitted to the association at its meeting next Sunday, a statement dealing with two of the planks of the personal platform which Byrnes announced Saturday. These planks are, "Make the Municipal Bridge an earner," and a paragraph relating to treatment of public service corporations.

The report says that the Byrnes plank as to the bridge means, by reasonable construction, that the Free Bridge, which was built to be operated without toll charges, should be made an additional toll-gate to the city, under the control of the Terminal Association. The plank as to public service corporations, the report says, would imply that these corporations had not received fair treatment in the past, whereas, in the opinion of the directors of the Tenth Ward organization, they have been treated too leniently rather than too strictly. Therefore, the directors ask that Byrnes shall explain his position on these matters in more detail, and that Mayor Kiel shall announce clearly his position on the same questions.

Public Service Plank.

The Byrnes plank on public service corporations is:

"Fulfillment of obligations to the city by public service corporations, with an undisturbed enjoyment of their rights, creating the idea that St. Louis is a safe and fair place for the investment of capital, with the uniting of all elements for a bigger and better St. Louis."

Byrnes said, when told of the action of the Tenth Ward directors, that he intended to discuss publicly and fully, during the campaign, all the planks in his platform.

SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY, HIT BY AN AUTO, DIES AT HOSPITAL

Driver Says He Slowed Down and Sounded Horn, but Child Hesitated and Ran in Front of Machine.

GIRL, 15, INJURED WHEN CAR SKIDS

Milk Wagon Driver and Two Children Hurt When Vehicle Is Struck by a Newspaper Truck.

Henry Jennings, 6 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jennings of 4036 Blaine avenue, died at the city hospital at 9:30 o'clock last night of a fractured skull suffered at 4:30 p. m. when knocked down at Lawrence and De Tonty streets by an automobile driven by Cornelius Sieges, 35 years old, of 5803 North Market street, a grocer.

Sieges took the boy to the hospital in his automobile. He told policemen that he saw the boy crossing the street and sounded his horn and slowed down, and that the boy hesitated and then ran directly in front of the moving automobile.

An automobile driven by Ralph Cash of 4048 Flora boulevard skidded on a drive in Forest Park, near Clayton road, in the afternoon and struck a lamp post. Miss Bernice Frauthenthal, 15, of 3804 Lafayette avenue, who was riding with Cash, suffered scalp wounds and cuts on the face. Cash also was cut.

A one-horse milk wagon driven by Peter Giammarinaro, 36, of 1129 North Eleventh street, was struck by a newspaper truck at 1 p. m. as it was turning south into Sixteenth street from Wash street. Giammarinaro and his two children, Veto, 7, and Rose, 10, who were riding with him, were cut and bruised, and Rose suffered a fracture of the left collar bone. The driver of the truck, Joseph J. Chill, of 4126 Natural Bridge avenue, a news agent, was arrested and charged with careless driving.

An automobile driven by Max F. Berman, 51, of 5910 Washington boulevard, collided at noon at Taylor avenue and Lindell boulevard, with an automobile driven by John L. Michel of 3334 Itaska street, a plumber. Michel's father, Edward J. Michel, 63, also of 3334 Itaska street, was thrown out of the Michel car and suffered scalp wounds and contusions.

OPPOSITION TO COL. HARVEY AS AMBASSADOR

ited with the authorship of a large part of the famous speech wherein Mr. Harding turned his back on the League of Nations. It was just prior to that speech that Elihu Root cabled from London urging Mr. Harding not to say that the present league "is dead." That cablegram, it can be disclosed, was addressed to none other than George Harvey, who was visiting at Mr. Harding's home. The story goes that Mr. Harding threw the cablegram in the waste basket and accepted the opinions of George Harvey on foreign affairs from that moment forward.

If Col. Harvey goes to Europe it is as a confirmed opponent of the present League of Nations. If he is converted to the opposite viewpoint while abroad, Mr. Harding will be converted. Therefore, those who believe the facts of the European situation are so convincing in themselves that anybody who goes to Europe becomes a convert to the idea will welcome the sending of the Colonel as a personal envoy of Mr. Harding. It is through trusted friends like Col. Harvey that President Harding must be convinced if he is to change his views about cooperation with Europe.

SUIT SAYS LIQUOR TAXES ARE REPEALED BY VOLSTEAD ACT

First Action of Kind Here by Saloon Keeper, Who Was Assessed Double Tax.

The first suit in St. Louis on the ground that the Volstead national prohibition act repealed all of the previously existing internal revenue laws as to the taxation of intoxicating liquors was filed in the United States District Court today on behalf of Steve Boggiano, a former saloon keeper at 1803 Washington avenue.

The petition was filed for Boggiano by Vance J. Higgs, who recently resigned as Special Assistant United States Attorney-General in charge of liquor prosecutions here. Higgs is now in private practice, though still retained as Government counsel in several liquor cases whose prosecution he started while in office. It is set forth in the petition that the United States Court of Appeals, in an Arkansas case, recently decided that the Volstead act repealed the internal revenue acts as to liquor and took away the power of Internal Revenue Collectors to collect liquor taxes and to assess penalties for failure to pay taxes on liquor.

Judge Faris granted a temporary restraining order, returnable March 19.

Boggiano is charged with having illegally had liquor in his possession at his saloon. He has not been tried. Collector Moore last December assessed penalties against Boggiano amounting to $557.29, which was double the legal tax on the whisky alleged to have been found in his possession. He also assessed an additional $500 penalty.

CAFE PROPRIETOR ALLEGES POLICE VIOLATED INJUNCTION

Attorneys Ask That Policemen Be Cited for Contempt of Court.

Attorneys for Joseph Gonnella, proprietor of the Belvedere Cafe, formerly Cicardi's, Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue, today presented a petition to Circuit Judge Franklin Miller in chambers, asking for a citation for contempt of court against policemen for alleged violation Saturday night of a temporary order recently granted by Judge Miller restraining the police from raiding or interfering with the business of that cafe.

After considering the petition, Judge Miller informed the attorneys to prepare an affidavit to the facts and present it to him in court today, and if he finds the affidavit to be in proper form, he said, he would order the police cited, as prayed for in the petition.

The petition set forth that Sergt. Kelly and his cleanup squad entered the cafe Saturday night, and although they did not attempt a search of the place, their presence caused the customers to become "terrorized," and that they were there with malice to intimidate the proprietor and his employes.

HOMICIDE VERDICT AGAINST MAN FOR SHOOTING WOMAN

Benjamin Stofield of East St. Louis Named at Inquest—Witness Tells of Alleged Threats.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide, naming Benjamin (Bernie) Stofield, 25, of 1407A Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, was returned today in the death Saturday of Mrs. Letha E. Hoffman, 31, who was shot Friday night in the doorway of her home at 521A North Vandeventer avenue.

Police Sergeant Cosgrove said that when he reached the woman she told him "Bernie Stofield shot me like a dog." William de Vault, 3414 Bell avenue, testified that Mrs. Hoffman told him that Stofield shot her because she "wouldn't make up with him."

Virginia Young, a sister of the slain woman, testified that Stofield had made threats against her sister about a year ago and that on the day of the shooting he had said over the telephone that he was going to "get" her sister. Stofield has not been found by the police.

SENATE PASSES BILL FAVORING LEAD CONCERN

Measure Would Permit Absorption of Doe Run by St. Joe Company.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—The Senate today passed the bill permitting the St. Joe Lead Co. to absorb its rival, the Doe Run Lead Co., both of St. Francois County. The bill sets aside a decision of the Supreme Court which refused permission for the merger on the ground that it was a "fraudulent consolidation under the guise of dissolution."

Senator Blodgett, in opposing the bill, said: "The enactment of this measure into a law would permit the Simmons Hardware Co. to absorb the Shapleigh Hardware and the Liggett-Myers Tobacco Co. to take over the Brown Tobacco Co. It will make inoperative the anti-trust laws."

Bill Has Passed House.

As the bill has passed the House, the Senate's action marks the closing chapter in an unusual fight to dissolve the Doe Run Lead Co., which was the St. Joe company's nearest rival. In 1917, according to evidence presented in the Supreme Court hearing, the net profits of the Doe Run company were $2,800,000.

Sam R. Maynard of Thomasville, Ga., and Robert Holmes of St. Louis were the only stockholders of the Doe Run company who refused to approve the consolidation. Maynard was offered a bonus of $60,000 on his stock, which had a par value of $100,000. He contended that the earnings of the company made the stock worth five times its book value. Holmes, while holding less stock than Maynard, refused to sell his interest at the price offered. The St. Joe Lead Co. filed suit in the Circuit Court at Farmington to dissolve the Doe Run concern and the Court granted the request. Maynard and Holmes appealed to the Supreme Court, which reversed the lower court's decision.

The bill was presented to the Senate by Senator Belken, who for six years was employed by the St. Joe Lead Co. Politte Elvins, attorney for the St. Joe concern, and a Republican of State-wide influence, has been in Jefferson City throughout the session, openly lobbying for the bill.

Blodgett Only Opponent.

The only Senator who opposed the bill either on engrossment or passage was Blodgett. In his argument for the bill today Senator Irwin asked Blodgett if there was any invisible reason why he opposed the measure. Blodgett declared he had no interest in the measure but thought its passage would cause a loss to the Doe Run stockholders, who refused to approve the merger. Blodgett said he had been employed by Maynard but he had not been asked to oppose the passage of the bill. Senators Whitecotton of Monroe and McCullough of Knot spoke for the bill and condemned its opponents. The bill was written by Judge Williamson, who wrote the Supreme Court decision refusing permission to consolidate. He has since retired from the bench.

The bill empowers 90 per cent of the stockholders of a corporation to dissolve it without a court hearing. The only requirement is that the stockholders sign a dissolution petition which shall be filed in a court of record and the Judge is compelled to issue the order immediately and no appeal is permitted.

When asked afterward about his reference to the St. Louis hardware companies, Blodgett said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent: "A few years ago the Simmons Hardware Co. secured options on a large part of the Shapleigh Hardware Co. stock, but was not in a position to get it all. The matter was presented to the Attorney-General of the State, who refused to approve the consolidation, because it would have given the Simmons Hardware Co. between 80 and 85 per cent of all the hardware business in Missouri. At about the same time the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. attempted to take over the Brown Tobacco Co., and the Attorney-General stopped it. Under the bill pased today both of these consolidations can be effected, but I have no knowledge that there are deals pending to this effect."

planned to hold meetings tonight to discuss their action.

East St. Louis Packing House Employes at Work Today.

Employes of the East St. Louis packing houses continued at their work today pending a vote whether to accept a reduction of their hourly wage about 12½ per cent from 53 cents an hour and a lengthening of the working day from 8 to 10 hours, which became effective today.

Most of 4500 employes work on an hourly basis, only a few common laborers working by the day. A meeting will be held tonight in Polish Hall, Seventh street and St. Clair avenue, when the employes' union business agent, Earl Jimmerson, will report on a national packing house employes' conference held in Omaha. A public meeting will be held tomorrow night in the same hall. A vote on the new wage scale is expected at one of these meetings.

RIVER SCENIC HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION CONVENES

Organization Seeking to Promote North and South Highway Along Mississippi.

The Mississippi River Scenic Highway Association, an organization of Chamber of Commerce, banks, and a few city administrations to promote a north and south highway along the Mississippi similar to the Lincoln highway east and west, opened its sixth annual meeting today at the Claridge Hotel. The meeting will close Wednesday.

The method followed by the association, according to its president, Truman Pierson of Minneapolis, is to organize cities along the route, from Winnipeg and Port Arthur, Canada, through the principal cities of the Mississippi valley, including St. Louis to Port Arthur, Tex., New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., to build up traffic. Road improvement, he said, will necessarily follow traffic, and a considerable part of the route has been improved. The functions of the association will include later, he said, free bureaus for assisting tourists in all the cities.

MEN CHARGED WITH MURDER OF POLICEMAN GET CONTINUANCE

Attorney for Creed Brothers Pleads Absence of Important Witness.

The cases of Thomas Creed, 2605 La Salle street, and his brother, Robert Creed, 2930 Easton avenue, charged with first degree murder for the killing of Patrolman George E. Geisler of the Central District Oct. 31 last in the saloon of William F. English, 2100 Clark avenue, were continued today by Circuit Judge Hall to April 18, to be tried on that date without fail.

The cases were originally set for Jan. 3, but were continued because the defendants had not employed counsel. Thomas B. Harvey appeared today as their attorney and asked for a continuance on the grounds that he had not had time to prepare his case, and an important witness, James Lawson, who is said to be in Detroit, has not been located. Circuit Attorney Sidener protested that he was ready to go to trial and would admit the testimony of Lawson, by which the defense intended to explain how the policeman's revolver came to be in Thomas Creed's home, where it was found after the shooting. Judge Hall granted the continuance, but said it would be the last one given.

HYDE WANTS AMENDMENTS TO THREE POLICE BILLS

Measures as Passed by House Would Increase Power of City Officials Over Force.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—Gov. Hyde today indicated that the three Aloe bills to increase the power of the city officials of St. Louis over the city Police Department will have to be amended before he will sign them.

The bills, which were passed by the House last week, would abolish the provision for sending city officials to jail if they fail to make appropriations for the police budget, would authorize the police and members of the Board of Estimates and Apportionment to sit together in making up the police budget and would give the Mayor power to take charge of the department in emergencies until the Police Board could act.

Gov. Hyde said that while he thought the two boards should sit together in making up the police budget, that the Board of Estimates should not be able to outvote the Police Board, and that the bills must so provide.

UNIONS SPEND $23,933 ON WAITERS' STRIKE

Secretary of Joint Board Files Report on Support of Walkout Since Oct. 1 Last.

The strike of the organized waiters, waitresses and cooks, which began Oct. 1, following announcement by the Hotel and Restaurant Owners' Association that the closed shop principle would be no longer recognized by their establishments, has cost the trades union members of St. Louis $23,933.67 up to date, according to an itemized report of receipts and expenditures submitted to the Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday by Secretary Keller of the Local Joint Board.

As is known, the waiters and cooks have given up the fight and called off the strike so far as their organizations are concerned, but the waitresses are still out and have expressed determination to remain out until the controversy is settled.

The report showed that a total of $24,083.67 had been contributed by 200 local unions up to Feb. 9 and that bills outstanding at that time amounted to $1820.29. Of the expenditures the largest item went for picketing, a total of $19,602.32 having been paid as wages to pickets. Of this amount the waitresses received $3100.

A special plea was made by Organizer Kreyling for more funds for the waitresses. He said that they were engaged in a fight of vital importance to organized labor and that they should have the whole-hearted suport of all trades unionists.

BONDSMAN NAMED BY WOMAN SUMMONED

Prosecutor to Question Harry Anastas, Said to Have Accepted $145 to "Fix" Case.

Harry Anastas, a saloon keeper of 601 Market street, who acts as a bondsman, was summoned before Circuit Attorney Sidener today to answer the statement of Mrs. L. Kattleman, 308 Sidney street, that he had accepted $145 from her "to fix the case" in which her son, Harry Bien, was charged with a second degree burglary and larceny.

As stated in the Post-Dispatch Saturday, Mrs. Kattleman exhibited a card bearing the signature of Anastas' name, which was a receipt of money received for Harry Bien "to settle the case."

Anastas was accompanied by Frank Slater, Republican Committeeman in the Seventeenth Ward, who also is an attorney and who said that he was acting in friendly behalf of Anastas.

Anastas told the Circuit Attorney that he accepted the money for payment to Sam Thomas, 1306 South Tenth street, whom, it is charged, Bien robbed last Jan. 6 of clothing and jewelry valued at $179. He said that the woman had been sent to him by other bondsmen who knew that Thomas was a countryman of Anastas and that they importuned him to see what he could do with Thomas.

The Circuit Attorney said he would question Thomas.

DRUGGIST SHOT IN FINGER IN PISTOL FIGHT WITH ROBBER

Alfred Chenoweth, Leaving Store at 4101 Laclede Av., Jumps Behind Telephone Pole When Held Up.

Alfred Chenoweth, a druggist at 4101 Laclede avenue, was shot in the small finger of the left hand last night at 11 o'clock by a man who tried to hold him up and whom he put to flight and appeared to have wounded.

Chenoweth had left his drug store to go to his home at 4211 Laclede avenue, when a man stepped from a doorway at 4103 and, pointing a revolver, ordered him to put up his hands. Chenoweth leaped behind a telephone pole and opened fire with a revolver. The man returned the fire. Each fired five shots and the man ran east to Sarah street, turning north in Sarah.

A negro who was standing on the corner of Sarah street and Laclede said that the fugitive entered an automobile in which there were two other men and that he required the assistance of the others.

Oil Filling Station Safe Blown and $700 Taken.

The safe in an oil filling station at 6500 Easton avenue was blown open with nitroglycerin at 2:40 a. m. today by cracksmen, who obtained approximately $700. The explosion was heard by newspaper carriers, who reported the robbery to the police. The robbers escaped. A safe at this station was blown open and robbed of $400 cash and $600 in checks the night of Feb. 22 last.

Burglars entered the Rower-Beine Paint Co. office at 3133 North Ninth street through a window, knocked off the safe combination and obtained a $50 Liberty bond and $15 in cash.

Burglar, Jumping on Roofs, Escapes.

A burglar escaped today at 2:45 a. m. through a police line drawn about the Missouri Packing Co., 2734 Franklin avenue, a retail meat and grocery establishment. A noise within the place had attracted the attention of Patrolman Davis, who summoned aid, the police surrounding the place. A man jumped from a second-floor window to a roof of a one-story structure in the rear, from that roof to another and into the alley, escaping. Iron bars at a window on the second floor had been loosened and the sawing of a hole in the floor of the second story had been begun. In the store the police found a cap and overcoat, a four-ounce bottle containing nitro-glycerin, a bar of soap, a quantity of dynamite fuse, a jimmy and a sack.

Three Young Men Rob Girl's Escort.

Three young men last night at 9:15 o'clock stopped Roy C. Fischer of 5212 Cabanne avenue and Ruth M. Grote of 4119 Castleman avenue on Tower Grove avenue between Castleman avenue and Flora boulevard, taking $4.75 and an English sovereign from Fischer. They fled around a nearby corner where they apparently had an automobile because about 11 o'clock three young men of the same description riding in an automobile held up DeWitt C. Nellis, 2748A Ann avenue, on Missouri avenue near Albion place, taking 40 cents and a watch, chain and gold knife valued at $50. Twenty minutes later three young men in an automobile stopped Elmer N. Williamson, 4269 Botanical avenue, and Miss Lorraine Brinke, 3960 Arsenal street, on the main drive near the center of Tower Grove Park, taking $4 from Williamson.

Two Men Arrested.

Two men with revolvers stopped Walter Bernatowsky, 1413 North Ninth street, and Paul Mackwcz, 2312 O'Fallon street, in front of 1411 North Ninth street, Sunday, at 2 a. m. Macnwcz ran, which so distracted the attention of the pair that Bernatowsky was enabled to run into his home nearby. He returned with a revolver and began to fire at the men. At this juncture policemen came around the corner. Two men were observed to enter a rooming house at 1400 North Ninth street. In a room on the second floor the police arrested Benjamin Powell, 23, of 823 Brooklyn street, and on the roof, William Schmidt, 25, of 1711 North Eighth street. Later they were identified also by William Schroeter, 1524 North Tenth street, as the pair who held him up Saturday night on Ninth street near Cass avenue, taking $30.

Samuel Landsdorf, 5537 Waterman avenue, reported to the police yesterday the disappearance of a diamond brooch valued at $1200 from a jewel box in his third-floor apartment at that address.

Mrs. Bessie Warner of 920 North Nineteenth street yesterday rented a room to a couple who gave her a $10 bill, departing for a walk after she had given them $6.50 in change. Later she found that the $10 bill was a $1 bill crudely raised.

On Road To Boneyard

I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy, and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food, and that but sparingly, as any food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of ninety pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I took, and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. COMMITTEES MEET WITH MELLON IN TARIFF CONFERENCE

Program for Revenue Legislation Formulated for Presentation to President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Formulation of a definite program for tariff and internal revenue legislation confronted Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee today on meeting with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to draft recommendations which will be submitted to President Harding.

Whether enactment of a stop-gap emergency tariff measure should be given precedence over revenue legislation was one of the questions to be decided. Although the Republican members of both committees were known to hold divergent views the drift of sentiment appeared to favor a new emergency tariff measure for the protection of agricultural interests.

CHILD DIES OF PNEUMONIA; HAD NO MEDICAL ATTENTION

A Coroner's verdict of death from bronchial pneumonia without medical attention was returned today in the case of Margaret Duenke, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Duenke, who died Saturday at 10:30 a. m. at her home, 2913 Keokuk street.

Gustave Twellman of 3135 Shenandoah avenue, a chiropractor, testified that he had treated the child for a week, trying to "adjust" her by massage and manipulation, and that on Monday he told Johannes Demler, 5910 Michigan avenue, magnetic healer, to see her. Demler testified that he gave her treatment by personal magnetism, which was exerted toward the relief of the lungs. He said she was suffering from indigestion and congestion of the lungs. He said he saw her the last time Wednesday.

HARDING ENJOYS DAY OF REST

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Wearied by a week given over largely to conferences, President Harding yesterday cast aside the cares of office and rested. The President and Mrs. Harding attended the morning service at Calvary Baptist Church and after dining with a few intimate friends as guests, strolled through the White House grounds and took a long automobile ride.

The church was filled, word having spread that Mr. Harding would attend the service and hundreds waited outside to get a glimpse of the chief executive.

Dr. J. Stanley Durkee, president of Howard University, occupying the pulpit, expressed the belief both in his prayer and sermon that the nations of the world, including "distraught Russia," would come to a common understanding, insuring perpetual peace.

SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

George P. Gearhart, 18 years old, of 346 North Spring avenue, was sentenced to five years in the Boonville reformatory today upon his plea of guilty to a charge of robbery in the first degree. A sentence of five years in the penitentiary was commuted because of his youth.

Gearhart on last Dec. 28 robbed Louis Silver of 4182 Delmar boulevard of $85 near his home.

HOUSE AMENDS BANK BILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—The House today defeated an attempt to confer upon the State Bank Commissioner power to refuse to grant certificates of incorporation to new banks for which he could see no "public necessity" by striking a provision conferring that authority out of a bill passed by the Senate.

The bill, drawn by Senator Bennett of Dallas County and approved by State Bank Commissioner Hughes, then was returned to the informal calendar by Representative Kyle, who handled it in the House.

MOTHER SUES FOR ANNULMENT

Mrs. V. Mallm of 2739 Allen avenue, today filed suit in Circuit Court to annul the marriage of her daughter, Virginia D. Carpenter, 16, to Hilliard L. Carpenter, 19, of 3800 Shaw avenue, a clerk in the railway mail service. They were married last Feb. 14, but the mother declares it was without her consent and that they did not subsequently live together.

'MODERN MENACES TO MODESTY'

The Rev. William Agnew, editor of the Queen's Work, a Catholic publication, preached last night at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard, on the subject: "Some Modern Menaces to Modesty and Some Aids." He summed up his observations as follows:

"Hence, my brethren, it is a deadly sin and a social menace to follow an aroused tendency to impure pleasure. Theaters which specialize in the presentation of grossly suggestive scenes are a menace to moral health and social decency. Any style of dress which by its indelicate exposures subjects the casual beholder to the necessities of combating tendencies toward impurity in thought or deed is a social and a moral menace and those who unnecessarily adopt it while conscious of its impropriety cannot be without moral blame."

Two Held in Murder of Aged Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 14.—"Gip" Webster, 17 years old, and Sam Baird, 24, are under arrest at Galena, Stone County, in connection with the fatal shooting of James Crabtree of Galena. Crabtree, 71, was shot when he resisted efforts of two men to rob him of $500 which he had drawn from the bank a few hours before. Bloodhounds followed a trail from the scene of the crime to the home of Webster. The Webster boy is said to have implicated Baird.

TEAMSTER FOUND DEAD IN ALLEY

James O'Connell, a teamster, 37 years old, 4734 Ashland avenue, was found dead at 8:30 o'clock last night in an alley east of Taylor avenue between Maffitt and Kennerly avenues.

Police were told that he had been in a saloon at 2700 North Taylor. In a rear room they found what they said was moonshine whisky. The proprietor, Frank Lenceski, and his wife, Mary, and four men who were in the place were arrested. An inquest will be held today.

OLD King Cole
Was a sorry old soul
Till his housekeeper bought Bond Bread
Then he cried full of mirth:
"Here's a bread that is worth
Twice as much as the crown on my head."

A crown for a loaf of "Bond"

TAKE a chap like Old King Cole. He was a fine fellow—jolly and merry. And he liked to eat. Even his crown didn't mean so much to him as the joy of good-living.

BB

THIS is what happened in his house one day: The Royal Housekeeper said—

"Your Highness—from now on—for every meal—and between meals, thou wilt have Bond Bread instead of that hard-tack we have been serving Your Majesty."

"And what may Bond Bread be?" King Cole asked.

BB

"SIRE," the Housekeeper replied, "Bond Bread is but the purest flour, milk, salt, sugar, lard and yeast, baked so wondrous well that its flavor and texture are like unto the Queen's pound cake. On each loaf, the ingredients are listed in a Bond—from which Bond Bread is named."

"Ah!" said the King, "I would give my crown for bread like that."

Knowing Bond Bread as you do, wouldn't you be glad to give your Crown for it, too—if you were old King Cole?

Exercises in St. Patrick's Parish to Be Held at Church Thursday.

Celebration of the diamond jubilee of the founding of St. Patrick's Church, 1207 North Sixth street, will be held Thursday, St. Patrick's day, at the church. The church, of which the Rev. Timothy Dempsey is pastor, was erected in 1846. This also will be the occasion for the seventy-fifth celebration of the Feast of St. Patrick in St. Louis.

Father Dempsey will complete 23 years of service with the church on July 4. The first pastor of the church was Father Lutz. He was succeeded in 1846 by Father Wheeler, who remained with the parish until 1850. In 1856 Father Wheeler returned to the church and was pastor until 1870. Father Wheeeler was assisted by Father St. Cyr and Father Henry. Owing to the destruction of records of the church in a fire several years ago, complete information regarding the early days of the church cannot be obtained.

Father Dempsey today sketched a history of the parish, as it had been related to him, as follows:

"At the time of building, the church was located outside of the city limits, which then were Seventh street on the west and Biddle street on the north. This region was settled almost exclusively by persons of Irish birth or descent. At the height of the church in the '70s there was one year in which there were more than 30,000 persons living in the parish. The parish includes the district from Washington avenue to Howard street and from the river to Eleventh street. In one year there were 1370 baptisms at this church.

"The change in the character of the parish was brought about by the railroads purchasing almost all of the land from the river to Broadway. The Irish settlers received from $250 a foot to $1100 a foot for their land. Since then immigrants have settled in the parish.

"The building which is now used as a hotel for workingmen was built in 1873 and cost $100,000. It was then used as a parochial school. Several years later the Board of Education purchased it to be used as a public school. When the Patrick Henry School was completed, the board had no further use for the building, so it was leased by the church and converted into the hotel. The Day Nursery for babies of women who work was established in 1911. The hotel for workingwomen was opened in 1911. The hotel for men will accommodate 278 men. The hotel for women will accommodate about 100, while as many as 175 babies can be cared for at the nursery.

"There are now four churches in this parish to meet the needs of the people here. St. Patrick's Church, however, is the only English-speaking church in the district."

Father Dempsey said that many persons now prominent in St. Louis have been members of his parish.

Special collections will be made at Thursday's services for Irish relief. Priests from other parishes in Missouri will attend the jubilee.

THURSTON, THE MAGICIAN, AMUSING AND MYSTIFYING

Has New Stage Settings and Several Tricks Not Shown Before.

After arriving too late for a matinee performance, Thurston, the magician, entertained a large audience at the American Theater last night. All of his stage settings and trappings are new, and he has added several tricks to his bag, though novelty does not seem to be a requisite. Some of the sleight-of-hand feats and illusions which Thurston has been doing for years appear to have lost none of their popularity.

The act known as "the levitation of the Princess Karnac" continues to be a source of wonder, as do several other tricks in which performers seemingly are made to disappear and bob up in unexpected places. One of the real thrillers is apparent substitution of a lioness for a boy in a barred cage.

Thurston gives his usual mock-serious presentation of cabinet manifestations and closes his show with a picturesque act, "The Mystery of the Water Fountains," in which he transfers jets of running water to various parts of the stage at will with amusing effect.

STATURE

The Japanese want to increase their stature, and they believe more milk will do it;

So they have invited an American to come over and help them increase their milk supply;

Which will add considerably to their enjoyment of life, if not to their stature;

Especially if the milk is as rich and creamy as that served at CHILDS.

Pure milk, produced under ideal conditions in carefully selected dairies.

GOOD BLOOD NEEDED IN SPRINGTIME

People With Poor Appetite Bad Complexions and "Spring Fever" Need a Blood Tonic.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Is Best

Makes Rich Red Blood—Renews Vitality and Increases Body's Resistance to Disease.

Spring is the time when good blood is so vital to health. If you do not feel the thrill of Spring in your blood, if you take no pleasure in living, if your appetite is poor, your complexion pallid or muddy, and you tire easily, you can be pretty sure your blood is not up to the mark. So many feel that way in the Spring. Especially housewives who have so much work to do. They get over-tired and run-down—their blood becomes weak and thin.

Build up your health now by taking that splendid Spring blood tonic, Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It will give vital power to the red corpuscles in your blood. They will go racing through your blood, carrying fresh supplies of oxygen to all the tiny cells. It will help improve your color and your appetite. You'll take more interest in things and enjoy life more. You will stop going around with that tired, all-gone feeling.

Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for thirty years. You can get it at your druggist's in either tablet or liquid form. Take whichever you prefer. They have the same medicinal value. Get the genuine.

FAMOUS STAGE COMEDY GOES WELL ON SCREEN

"When We Were Twenty-One," Has H. B. Warner as Star—"Hush" Has a Queer Moral Twist.

Nat Goodwin's great stage success, "When We Were Twenty-one," has been most artistically transferred to the screen in the version which opened at the Liebrty Theater yesterday for a week's run. This is a play with a rare vein of comedy, some pathos and a great deal of worldly wisdom. H. B. Warner, a film actor of unusual poise and skill, has the leading role as the guardian of his nephew, familiarly known to his elders as "The Imp." This youth has inherited a fortune. It is planned that he shall marry a charming girl named Phyllis, but these plans seem doomed to failure when a designing adventuress, Kara, comes upon the scene.

Warner, in the part of Richard Carewe, sets out to thwart the adventuress and make the world of romance safe for the charming Phyllis. To do this he must put a blot on his own reputation, but he does not hesitate to make the sacrifice. Christine Mayo has the part of the adventuress and Claire Anderson that of Phyllis. Much of the rich comedy of the stage version has been preserved.

"O'Malley of the Mounted."

The hard riding, quick shooting, resourceful Bill Hart is seen at his best in "O'Malley of the Mounted" at the Missouri Theater. The scenery and photography of this picture are a delight to the eye. As to the plot, the story is another of those thrilling adventure tales which have been built around the exploits and achievements of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police. Hart, in the role of "O'Malley," is ordered to run down a man who has shot and killed a saloon keeper.

The trail leads him across the border into the United States. In the little town of Work City things begin to happen and they move quickly. "O'Malley" arrives at a "rodeo," or annual Wild West show, in time to see the man he is hunting win the first prize as a broncho buster. He trails his man into the mountains, where the slayer has sought refuge with a gang of robbers. Things are complicated by the fact that the slayer's beautiful sister also is there.

To get in with the gang, "O'Malley" has to rob a bank and do other daring things. The sister, played by Eva Novak, exerts a strong influence on the rugged policeman, and when he hears her story of why her brother kill a man, he doesn't make the arrest. There is a counter plot in which "O'Malley" is accused of having betrayed the gang. He is about to be hanged to a tree when the girl rescues him. This is a true Bill Hart drama of the kind which made him famous and is good entertainment. On the bill also is a most amusing Booth Tarkington comedy of boyhood, entitled "Edgar's Feast Day." Irish numbers are featured on the musical program.

Clara Kimball Young in "Hush."

A good medium for the exploitation of the mature beauty of Clara Kimball Young and Kathlyn Williams is "Hush," the week's leading attraction at the New Grand Central. This is a domestic problem play of considerable appeal to feminine interest.

The wife, portrayed by Clara Kimball Young, listens to the voice of conscience and tells her husband that he is not the only man she ever loved. Revelation is followed by separation. The husband suspects the wrong man, an artist, but does little about it except mope around the house during the separation period. Then, through the efforts of "Isabel," who, we are assured, is a "platonic friend" of the artist, the husband learns he was mistaken in his suspicions as to the artist.

The action closes with the husband and wife reunited and the interjection of a choice bit of movie-made philosophy which informs wives in general that a husband will be jealous and unforgiving, so long as he thinks he knows who the "other man" is, but that he will forgive the gravest transgression if he has no specific person as an object of his jealousy.

On the bill also is a most amusing Mack Sennett comedy, "Love, Honor and Behave."

Eugene O'Brien at West End Lyric.

Eugene O'Brien, who has a following all his own in the movie world, is the star at the West End Lyric this week in "Worlds Apart," which tells an out-of-the-ordinary story in a rather obvious but pleasing way. O'Brien is seen as Ledyard, a young man of the "real" people, who is rather inclined to believe that the world is against him because he is jilted by a woman in his own set. He prepares to go to the dogs as rapidly as possible and is well on his way when he stumbles across a young woman who is about to drown herself. Ledyard saves her life and evolves a plan to revenge himself upon society by marrying her and taking her back into his own world. After that things do not work out just as he expected, but nevertheless the climax is hardly a surprise to the audience.. The cast supporting O'Brien is a good one, and the photography excellent. "Hey, Rube," with Bobby Vernon, is the comedy feature of the bill.

Some Unusual Crooks.

It is a queer pair of crooks who dominate "Straight Is the Way," the feature film at the Delmonte, the first part of this week. They are a pair of New York second-story men who descend upon a little town, expecting to make a general clean-up. Respectably enough they go to board at the home of a down-at-the-heel old gentlewoman and are touched by her struggle to make both ends meet. Of course, their landlady has a daughter, prettily played by Gladys Leslie, and one of the burglars falls in love with her. After that the straight path looms up large in the lives of the two crooks, and in the end they "go straight," after assisting the two women to get on their feet again and balk the money lender, who, as is customary, holds the ever reliable mortgage on their home. There is plenty of pleasing comedy and the parts are all excellently done, with some very pretty out-of-doors photography. The news pictures, a Mutt and Jeff comedy, another farce, "The Simp," and some fitting Irish songs and special music for St. Patrick's week complete the Delmonte's program.

ADMINISTRATION PRIMARY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Bill Apparently Aimed at Jacob Babler Supported by Virtually All Republicans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—The administration primary election bill, containing many changes in the law, was passed by the House this afternoon, 92 to 26. It was passed by the Senate several days ago, but must be returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

Through the influence of Representative Morgan of Putnam County, Republican floor leader, an amendment to the bill which would permit the calling of a party State convention to oust a National Committeeman was voted down, 60 to 41. It was clear the amendment was directed toward such a condition as arose over National Committeeman Babler, following the Lowden slush fund disclosures last fall. If it had been adopted it would have been possible to yet hold a convention to oust Babler. Morgan opposed the resolution vigorously and virtually all the Republicans voted with him. The Democrats almost to a man voted for the amendment, which was offered by Representative Ferguson of Ripley County, minority floor leader.

The House adopted an amendment to strike out the provisions for the nomination of candidates for Judges of the Supreme and Appellate courts by conventions of delegates elected in the various counties. As the bill now stands the primary law remains effective as to the nomination of candidates for all offices.

ST. LOUISAN ARRESTED WITH GIRL IN CHICAGO FINED $200

Arthur H. Hamilton Assessed on Charge of Contributing to Girl's Delinquency.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Arthur H. Hamilton, a St. Louis real estate dealer, was fined $200 and costs in the Court of Domestic Relations today when he appeared to answer a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Edna Irene Stewart, 17 years old, also of St. Louis.

Hamilton recently was arrested with the girl in a rooming house here. Letters showed that the girl followed Hamilton to Chicago when he came here on business. The girl will be returned to her parents in St. Louis.

Hamilton is 40 years old and has a wife, and two children living at 4113A Laclede avenue. The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Irene Stewart, 1225 Armstrong avenue.

$15,000,000,000 SUGGESTED AS REASONABLE REPARATION

Senator France Advises Extension of Substantial Credit to Allies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Reasonable reparation terms for Germany and the extension of a substantial credit to the allies in exhcange for the surrender of the German-African colonies and German cables to the United States was proposed by Senator Joseph I. France in an address here yesterday as a solution of the world credit and commerce tangle.

Senator France mentioned $15,000,000,000 as "reasonable reparation" and proposed a $5,000,000,000 credit for Germany. He also favored an international conference to take concerted action in the disintegration of empires and the establishment of a program of intellectual advancement for the peoples of the world.

Brave, Confident, Trusting Patient Important Factor in Surgery, Dr Selig Says

Safety Means More Than Technique in Operation; Prevention of Exhaustion, Hemorrhage, Exposure and Infection Necessary.

Dr. Major G. Seelig, professor of clinical surgery in the Washington University Medical School, spoke yesterday in the school auditorium, Euclid and Scott avenues, on "Factors of Safety in Surgery." His address was the last of a series of 10 free public Sunday afternoon lectures on health and medical topics, by members of the university faculty.

Dr. Seelig declared that "a bravely confident and trusting patient" was a factor second to none in the success of surgery. He said in part:

"I asked a mechanical engineer what the phrase 'factor of safety' meant to him. He replied, 'Seven to one, and if we do not build them that strong they are not safe.'

"As surgeons we deal, not with steel or timber or concrete; we cannot measure by sine, cosine and tangent; we cannot express stress and strain by any such a formula as seven to one; but, happily, we can conserve the comfort and energy and vital force of our patients by adopting methods approved by experience and by avoiding procedures likewise disapproved. The phrase, 'factors of safety,' as applied to surgery, embraces the application of all known methods directed against exhaustion, exposure, infection and hemorrhage. This does not simply mean that surgeons must command a safe and sure operative technique; far from it. They must possess such intimate knowledge of disease in general, and of the patient in particular, as to be able rationally to determine if surgery is indicated and then to apply the proper painstakingly acquired technique. Surgery does not signify merely the performance of operations. Skillful operating is only one of the many elements that we must consider under the head of factors of safety.

What Surgery Means.

"Surgery does not mean to surge; it does not mean to slash with a knife and spatter with blood. It means to work with the brain, and a surgeon's most brilliant cure may be wrought independent of anesthetic, operating room or knife. Surgery and its specialties differ from medicine and its specialties only in that surgical treatment happens to be predominatingly operative. Since we are defining terms still, let us cling tenaciously to the concept that surgery embraces the study as well as the treatment of disease, and let us not be blinded by the glitter of melodramatic operations.

"The surgeons of long ago can be best described by saying that they were not surgeons. Their relationship to surgery, as we know it, was about that of the army mechanician to the army transport corps, as interpreted by a negro chauffeur private that once drove me. The engine was knocking badly, and I asked him if it always knocked. 'Not always, sir,' he responded, 'but mostly always.' 'Why should that be?' I asked. 'I dunno, sir, but de army don't let us boys tend to de cars; we got to take dem to headquarters where dey has a lot of mechanics.' His pride seemed wounded, so I said, 'Well, now, don't you think it a good idea to have the cars attended to by mechanics?' 'Yes, sir,' he retorted, 'it would be a good idea if dey was mechanics.'

"And so it was with the surgeons of long ago; they were not surgeons, they were barbers—barbers of two types; the so-called barber surgeons, who wore long robes and confined their efforts to tonsuring, shaving and leeching, and the surgeon barbers, or surgeons of the short robe, who actually performed operations. Both the barber surgeons and the surgeon barbers were looked down upon by physicians as practitioners of a handicraft degrading and unworthy. It was only after nearly a century of struggle that surgeons won their spurs and established their equality with physicians. This struggle was not only long but also bitter, and it may interest you to know that, although over three centuries have passed since those days, we still have a quaint relic of the dispute in the refusal of the English surgeon to adopt the title of doctor. He is always mister.

Nurse Is Factor.

"Can you fail to realize what a real factor of safety the modern nurse is to you in your day of surgical need? One may with near truth paraphrase Peter Finley Dunne, and say that it doesn't make much difference whom you have as a surgeon, provided you have a good nurse.

"From physics we have taken the X-ray, thus safeguarding the course of healing of every fracture, confirming the diagnosis in innumerable surgical diseases and offering cure in some and immeasurable God-given relief in many other cases of malignant disease.

"From electricity we have appropriated so much that we are forced by time limitations to select just two, the electric magnet, which removes metallic foreign bodies that formerly could be removed either not at all, or only by a more or less formidable surgical operation; and the electrocardiograph, an application of the strong galvanometer principle which permits most accurate interpretation of heart action, function and disease. Used chiefly by the internist, this instrument serves, nevertheless, in many instances, as an invaluable aid to the surgeon in measuring the reserve force of his patient.

"Physical chemistry has utilized radium both as a means for upsetting everything we thought we knew about atoms and molecules, and also as a means for making some of us older ones thankful that we are not studying chemistry today. Surgery eagerly seizes these new facts. She tries out, in her own workshops, the various rays as they are discovered, with the beneficent result that humanity is safeguarded against mutilation, or shielded from suffering, in countless instances.

Study of the Body.

"The physiologist determines the cell content of the blood. The clinician studies these cells as influenced by disease and establishes thereby certain criteria which lead him in many instances to conclusions as to whether operative methods must be resorted to or not. Based on more intricate studies of the blood by the physiologist, the surgeon has perfected methods of transfusing blood from healthy individuals to others who are seriously compromised. This safeguard of transfusion represents a surgical victory of supreme importance.

"The chemist analyzes the various glands of the body, and when, as a result, chemistry announces the discovery of some specific substance, surgery immediately appropriates and applies the new fact in the hope that the domain of the knife be further restricted.

"The science of optics has been levied upon until surgery has secured for herself an optical armamentarium of uncanny possibilities. The ophthalmic surgeon peers through the pupil of the eye and reads from the retina data that enables him and us to say the patient has a brain tumor, nephritis, one of a dozen other diseases, or, happily, that nothing is wrong and the much-dreaded operation under contemplation need not be performed. The urologist, with his slender telescope, orients himself as perfectly regarding the inside of the bladder and kidneys as if these organs were exposed to the light of day, and thus renders diagnostic doubt minimal and operative assurance doubly sure.

"Another indispensable aid to surgery, an agency without which surgery in the real sense would not only be safe, but also not even conceivable, is anesthetics. In one of the operating amphitheaters of the Massachusetts General Hospital of Boston, you will see two very large hooks bolted into two newell posts. These hooks were used as anchors to which ropes were attached and made fast to the patient to be operated upon, so as to insure his remaining reasonably fixed during his writhings of pain. In 1846, in this very operating theater, Dr. John Collins Warren, for the first time in history, performed an operation on an etherized patient. As the patient slowly returned to consciousness Dr. Warren exclaimed, 'Gentlemen, this is no humbug.'

Anesthetics Unsafe.

"Despite their boon, neither ether nor chloroform is universally safe. When it is not possible to use them, surgery does not find itself helpless, however; it is still possible to sidetrack pain by the use of local anesthesia (the injection of cocaine or similar drugs into the tissues), or of spinal anesthesia (the injection of these same drugs into the spinal canal). The old story, therefore, of the patient tied to the operating table, racked and quivering with pain and fright, and finally lost, a sacrifice to exhaustion and shock, is forever wiped off the list of surgical disasters. Against such tragedies, thank heaven, we are safeguarded.

"Many of you, either now or later, will come to the realization that for each of you individually there is but one factor of safety, namely, your own surgeon, who commands in his own mind and person all the things we have already discussed. He must be a man whose training has been adequate, whose energies are boundless and radiant, spirit buoyant, ideals high; who thinks well of his associates, and whose associates think well of and respect him; who has the gift of forming his judgments quickly on rational premises, and who never changes these judgments except for logical reasons; who considers man as the noblest work of God and who, therefore, regards an unwarrantable disturbance of this handiwork as unholy mutilation; who relegates mere manual dexterity to its proper sphere, yet sparing no effort to make his hands the nimblest and most dexterous

BILLS FOR "PALMER BURNER" IN EVERY STATE BUILDING

Particular Type Made in Kansas City Mentioned in Measures — Would Cost $178,175.

CHOICE USUALLY LEFT TO THE USERS

Chairman of Committee That Put Name in Bills Says Agent for Company Told of Saving on Coal.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—The disclosure in examination of the appropriation bills introduced in the House by the Appropriations Committee that an attempt is being made at an expense of $178,175 to install in the boiler equipment of virtually every State institution in Missouri a particular type of burner, has attracted attention to the activities in Jefferson City during the Legislature of Eugene B. Todd of Nevada, Mo. Todd is the representative of the Gunn Buschow Burner Co., of Kansas City, which manufactures the Palmer burner, specified in every appropriation reported by the committee for State institutions.

Examination of a number of appropriation bills at other sessions of the Legislature does not disclose another instance of designation of particular make of equipment in appropriation bills. Such specifications usually are left to experts. Purchasing departments are left to determine the proper equipment, in case there are several of desirable type, to obtain the best bids.

Hyde Opposed Naming Burner.

It also has been disclosed that Gov. Hyde attempted to delete from the appropriation bills the specification for the Palmer burner, making the bills read "for heating plant, additions, extensions, installations and repairs." The committee, however, overruled him and reinstated in the bills the Palmer specification.

Under the procedure in the Missouri Legislature the appropriations committees of the two houses, meeting jointly, prepare the appropriation bills, which then are introduced in the House and are subject to amendment by either the House or the Senate. The bills reported contained these appropriations for the Palmer type of burner: Hospital, Fulton, $15,500; Hospital, Farmington, $14,250; Colony for Feeble-Minded and Epileptics, Marshall, $11,650; Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Mount Vernon, $9600; Confederate Soldiers' Home, Higginsville, $8900; Federal Soldiers' Home, St. James, $9250; School for Deaf, Fulton, $13,500; School for the Blind, St. Louis, $6725; Industrial Home for Girls, Chillicothe, $13,350; Industrial Home for Negro Girls, Tipton, $6900; Teachers' College, Kirksville, $9725; Teachers' College, Warrensburg, $13,500; Teachers' College, Cape Girardeau, $8500; Teachers' College, Springfield, $7975; Teachers' College, Marysville, $11,500; School of Mines, Rolla, $11,500; Lincoln Institute, Jefferson City, $7500.

Building Commission Plan.

Because of the fact that the Governor's legislative program contemplates the creation of a State Buildings Commission, which will have control of the erection of all buildings and the making of all repairs at State institutions, it became necessary to draft new appropriation bills. The committee's bill made the appropriations direct to the institutions, while the reorganization scheme required that the building and repairs appropriations be made to the Buildings Commission.

Under the direction of the Governor, new appropriations bills were prepared. His attention had been directed to the unprecedented attempt to designate the Palmer equipment and the designation was eliminated in the new bill, which was sent to the Appropriations Committee for introduction. It provided the same amount of money for the boiler equipment, but it left the Buildings Commission to decide the type of equipment to be used.

Notwithstanding the Governor's action, the committee changed the wording of the bill to again specify Palmer burners.

Todd, who appeared before the committee advocating the Palmer burner, has been active in Missouri politics for a number of years. He is a Democrat and was a Colonel on Gov. Gardner's personal military staff. When a reporter sought him today for a statement regarding his unusual success before the committee, it was found he had departed from Jefferson City last night.

Chairman's Explanation.

Representative F. H. Hopkins of Atchison County, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, gave this explanation for the committee's action:

"Col. Todd produced before the committee statements of heads of several State institutions in which the Palmer burner has been installed to the effect that it effected a remarkable saving in coal. We did not pay much attention to Todd's recommendation of the article he wanted to sell, but we did give attention to the recommendation of the heads of the institutions.

"Personally, I think it would be better to leave the question of choosing the particular type of equipment to the head of the institution which is to use it, or to the buildings commission, but the committee decided otherwise.

"When the new bill came down without the specification the committee decided that as it had made an investigation of the question, its judgment as to how the bill should read should prevail over that of the Governor. So the specification for the Palmer burner was put in the Governor's bill.

"However, Col. Todd told the committee that if the burner installed in any institution failed to pay for itself in 12 months in saving of coal, the company would take it out and put back the old equipment.

"We can't see that it makes any difference, anyway, because the Governor has the power to veto any appropriation."

Palmer's or None Under Bill.

As is well known, however, to persons experienced in legislation, there is a very marked difference. The Governor has the power to veto any item in the appropriation bill. He can veto the entire item, but he cannot change an item. Thus he could strike out an appropriation for the Palmer burner, but he could not leave in the bill the appropriation to be used for some other type of burner. Presumably there is reason for the installation of new burners. Under the bills as reported by the committee, Palmer burners or none would have to be installed.

Attention first was directed to the committee's action by Representative Killam, Democrat, of Lincoln County, in the House yesterday afternoon, when one of the original appropriation bills was up for engrossment. He asked why the Palmer burner should be specified. Hopkins apparently satisfied him with the explanation that it was indorsed by several State institutions.

The State penitentiary power plant is equipped with Palmer burners. W. R. Painter, chairman of the prison board, today said its use had effected a marked saving in coal.

Estimate of Saving.

"While it is difficult to estimate a saving of that kind," he said, "it is my opinion the saving is between 20 and 25 per cent. I think the Palmer equipment is good, but I do not give it unqualified indorsement. Like everything else, there are good features to it, and others not so good.

"As a matter of fact, we preferred other equipment but did not have sufficient available funds to install it. We wanted an automatic stoker system, but it would have cost about $90,000 and at the time the change had to be made such a large amount of money could not be obtained.

"An effort has been made to have the Prison Board install the Palmer burner at the Negro Industrial Home at Tipton, but we have not even considered it. Such equipment effects a saving only where large quantities of coal are used and that is not the case at Tipton."

The committee bill seeks to appropriate $6900 to install the equipment at the Tipton institution.

Wilhelm Says He Tried to Form League in 1905

Former Kaiser in His Book Paints Himself as Peace Crusader Foiled by "Perfidious Machinations" of Triple Alliance.

By the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, March 14.—In the book he has written in an attempt to show that Great Britain was responsible for the world war, former Emperor William of Germany always speaks of himself in the third person. He paints William as the man who tried for 30 years to maintain peace in Europe, but says he was foiled by the perfidious machinations of Great Britain, France and Russia.

As long ago as 1905 the former Kaiser says he tried to found a league of nations.

Although the complete book is not yet available, sufficient of the contents has leaked out to indicate the general trend of the entire work. The leak was principally due to the Berlin correspondent of the Rotterdam Maasbode.

The correspondent says the book begins with notes as far back as 1884. (William ascended the throne in 1888.)

"In some places," he adds, "the document is very interesting, especially notes of Aug. 18, 1891, where he treats of the visit of William to Czar Alexander III at Naarvik, when the Czar said he hated the French republic and wanted to restore a monarchy in France. But already, says the Kaiser, a Russian-French military agreement had been negotiated saying that in the event of the mobilization of any member of the Triple Alliance (Dreibund) a mobilization of French and Russian forces would be ordered immediately and these armies thrown into action at once."

English Proposal Declined.

Under date of April 18, 1898, the former Emperor wrote:

"An English proposal for an alliance of Germany against Russia is declined in order not to endanger the world's peace.

"At the same time Delcasse (then French Minister of Foreign Affairs) proposed to the German Ambassador in Paris a German-French agreement in order to prevent the Portuguese colonies falling under British influence. This proposal was not answered."

The former Emperor also claims that he drafted a project for a league of nations under date of March 24, 1905.

"A proposal," says the book, "was made by the former Kaiser to the Czar and to Witte (then Russian Foreign Minister) to found a League of Nations consisting of the Triple Alliance and the French and Russian Alliance, with the understanding also that other groups or separate countries may become members of the league. The proposal was accepted by the Czar and Witte. There was no question as to presidential power over the league."

"Absurd Demands of British."

Regarding the mission in February, 1912, of Viscount Haldane, then British Lord High Chancellor, the book says:

"German efforts to conclude neutrality with England failed in consequence of the absurd demand for a cessation of development of the German fleet through the curtailment of the building of new ships."

The former Emperor deals with the mobilization of 1914. He says this began as early as April of that year with "the mobilization of the English banks in order to get large stocks of gold." Then the Kaiser continues:

June 15: Russia—Troops called to arms in April and May under the pretense that they were to serve in maneuvers and being kept under arms for an outbreak of war."

"July 29: All the Belgian reserve officers have been called to arms."

Regarding the refusal of the suggestion by Russia to submit the Serbian incident to The Hague Court of Arbitration, the former Emperor says: "The proposal of the Czar was not approved. Russia wanted in this way to gain time to prepare for war.

"On Aug. 4, Sir Edward Grey (the British Foreign Secretary) demands of Germany that Germany halt her offensive march of troops in Belgium or otherwise England will protect Belgium. This was the English declaration of war."

CAMPAIGN TO INDUCE SOUTH OF IRELAND TO ACCEPT HOME RULE

Officials Will Try, Through Publicity Drive, to Convince People of Its Advantages.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 14.—An intensive campaign of publicity to convince the people of the south of Ireland that it would be to their advantage to accept the new home rule act will be launched shortly.

Opposition to the measure, centering in the south, is believed in official circles to be due largely to ignorance of the powers conferred by its provisions. Sir Hamar Greenwood, the chief secretary, is said to be determined that everyone the length and breadth of the island shall have full opportunity to study the law.

Thousands of copies of the act have been printed for gratuitous circulation. The country will be flooded with these circulars accompanied by a memorandum explaining the effect of the measure. Particular efforts will be made to see that the publicity reaches persons in position to influence public opinion. Copies will be mailed to school teachers, priests and others prominent in community life. It is planned to make the campaign an effective weapon directly aimed at the Sinn Fein movement.

No important section of Irish opinion has shown any willingness thus far to regard the act as even a basis for peace negotiations with the British officials.

All southern parties object to partition and, while willing to accord separate treatment to Northeast Ulster, object to a separate and equal parliament for that section. The Northeast Ulster men are equally determined in their position and declare they will oppose such extension of the powers of Southern Ireland as would enable it to set up a tariff against either England or Ulster.

The publicity campaign is expected by the British authorities to clear up many of the sectional differences by giving the people a thorough explanation of the exact powers and requirements for which the act provides.

SPENCER HOLDS UP CONFIRMATION OF C. C. MADISON

Senator Announces Decision After Conference With President Over Kansas City Appointment.

RECEIVES SEVERAL PROTEST TELEGRAMS

Harding Apparently Had Been Led to Believe Senator Was Not Interested in the Selection.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—After a conference of three-quarters of an hour with President Harding this morning, Senator Spencer said that he would not permit the confirmation of Charles C. Madison as Federal District Attorney of the Western Missouri District at the present session of the Senate. His subsequent course of action is yet to be determined. When the matter came up in the Senate today, Madison's confirmation was deferred on Spencer's motion.

Spencer said after his talk with the President today that he had requested that the appointment be withdrawn, but that for reasons which he did not care to go into this probably would not be done. He added that he would lay the facts fully before the Senate Judiciary Committee to which Madison's name was referred, on Spencer's motion, after it was received from the White House on Saturday. Spencer had not been consulted on the appointment.

"You can say positively," said Spencer, "that there will be no confirmation at this session."

Armed With Telegrams.

With his reputation among Missouri Republicans as a controller of Missouri Federal patronage at stake, Spencer went before the President armed with a sheaf of telegrams, protesting against the naming of Madison and asking him to "stand by his guns" as a Missouri Senator in opposing it. Among those who wired protests were J. G. Hughes, the State Republican chairman; C. D. Morris, editor of the St. Joseph Gazette, and three of the new Republican members of Congress—Ellis of the Kansas City district, Waust and Lawrence. Spencer's version of the conference was given in the following dictated statement:

"I saw the President only this morning and told him as strongly as I could that the appointment was a complete surprise to me and that in my judgment it was a mistaken appointment for the situation. I requested that the appointment be withdrawn. I do not thing that will be done. The President frankly and cordially told me he regretted that he was under a misapprehension as to the way I felt about it. He volunteered the statement that such a situation would not occur again.

"I am entirely convinced that the President did not have the facts fully before him, and that his interest in Missouri and his desire to do everything in his power to strengthen the administration in the State are unquestionable."

Was Presented by Reily.

E. Mont Reily's success in getting his man named, is believed to have been due in part to representations to the President that the place had to be filled immediately and that owing to the awkward political situation in Kansas City, Spencer would be glad to avoid a fight by having the appointment taken entirely out of his hands. That such was the impression made upon the President is indicated by his promptness in sending Madison's name to the Senate after it had been urged upon him by Reily.

Appointment of Madison Riles "House Cleaners'" Faction of Republican Party.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 14.—Ignored by the National Republican administration in the appointment of Charles C. Madison of Kansas City as United States District Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, the first of the Missouri patronage, Chairman J. G. Hughes and others of the "house cleaning" element of the Republican State Committee were occupied yesterday in conferences with the Governor and among themselves framing telegrams of protest to be sent to Washington.

The situation is one of considerable political importance in that it is accepted among organization Republicans as a definite indication that E. L. (Liv) Morse of Excelsior Springs, the Lowden paymaster in Missouri, National Committeeman Babler and others of the reactionary wing of the party will control Missouri patronage and that the "house cleaners," who thought they had eliminated the Morse-Babler-Dickey combine as a forceful factor, will not receive any consideration from Washington.

Multiplicity of Parties in Poland Creates Confusion and Reveals a Lack of Teamwork

Various Majority Divisions in Diet, Which Throw Their Votes Now This Way, Now That, Depending on the Issue.

By Arthur Ruhl.

Mr. Ruhl, who is a well-known foreign correspondent, has made a special investigation of conditions in Poland.

IN one of the chapters on Poland in his "The New Eastern Europe," an English writer, Ralph Butler, tells an imaginary tale of three Polish tailors' assistants who, meeting by chance one night on New York's East Side, formed before the evening was over the Young Polish Party of Union and Freedom and arranged to hold a Pan-Polish National Congress next day.

As each one wanted to have the Congress held in his room and none would yield, there were long negotiations—during which each remained in his own room—at the end of which it was finally decided to leave the dispute unsettled in principle, but to go ahead and hold an inaugural meeting of the conveners of the Congress in Casimir's room and the Congress itself at Stanislaus'.

The Congress was a great success. All resolutions were passed unanimously and the restoration of the ancient kingdom of Poland was proclaimed, but on the following day Stanislaus and Timko each received a note from Casimir announcing his secession from the party and the formation by him of the National and International Polish Progressive League.

By the following Saturday, however, Casimir and Stanislaus had recombined in the Group of Polish Statehood and Political Work, Stanislaus having discovered in the meantime that Timko's mother was a Ruthenian and both being determined that Timko should be kept in his place.

A Faithful Analogy.

Mr. Butler's story is an allegory, but it could be matched many times over in the history of the gallant and idealistic but quarrelsome and temperamental Poles. Something of the sort will have occurred to almost any foreigner today who arrives in Warsaw for the first time and starts in to locate himself in what seems at first the inextricable hodge-podge of Polish parties and "orientations."

The Poles have always been individualists in their politics. It was true in the days of the old kingdom, when any noble with his "Liberum veto" could block any measure of the Polish Diet, and when the more powerful magnates had their own retinue of followers and not infrequently conspired with foreign Powers against their own Government.

Something of the same sort was shown in 1916—at any rate, so the Central Powers thought—when Pilsudski, whose Polish Legion was fighting with Austria at that time, suddenly withdrew his men from the front. It was revealed again last summer when Mr. Dmovski, leader of the National Democrats, withdrew to German Poland at the moment that the Bolsheviks were threatening Warsaw, and there began the organization of an army which he called a reserve and his enemies called a traitorous conspiracy to overthrow the Pilsudski Government.

This tendency to differentiation has been encouraged, of course, by the partitions, which not only divided the Poles, but kept them from normal political activity and compelled them to conspire, often, if they were to have any political life at all. But there is something Polish in it as well.

Lack Teamwork.

The Poles seem to lack that instinct for teamwork—or, if you prefer, that fear of nonconformity—which the freeborn American majority exhibits when it jumps on the neck of anyone who differs by a hair's breadth from what the majority considers correct; or which permits, for instance, Raymond Robins or William Allen White, year after year, in spite of occasional moans, to bend their proud necks to the yoke of the Republican party.

There are over a dozen parties in the Polish Diet, or "Seym," a recent list of which, as supplied by the Polish Foreign Office, included the Polish Peasants' party—the most numerous in the Diet and the party of Prime Minister Witos—the People's National Union (including the National Democrats), National People's League, Socialist party, National Working party, Christian Democratic Club, Club of Deliverance, Club of Constitutional Work, Citizens' Club, Radical Peasants (Stepinski's group), Catholic People's Club (Matakiewicz's group), Jewish and German members and several belonging to no party.

The Peasants' party, nicknamed "P. S. L.," has 85 of the 395 seats. There should be about 525 Deputies, but elections could not be held in all the districts for various reasons, and in those neighborhoods where no elections were held, the former Polish Deputies to the Austrian and German Parliaments were called to the Seym.

Mr. Witos would be called a "farmer" in America rather than a "peasant," and the "P. S. L." represents the interests and point of view of the small land owners. It originated in Galicia and is strongest there. They advocate a one-chamber Diet—a National Congress, without a Senate, that is to say—and rather radical agrarian reforms.

Middle-Ground Party.

The Peasants' party is regarded as a middle-ground party. Of the conservative groups, the most important are the National Democrats, a "bourgeois" party containing many of the country's most capable men. It has lost influence of late years, but before the war its leader, Ramon Dmovski, was often spoken of as Poland's outstanding statesman, and he and his party worked more conscientiously and aggressively, perhaps, for what they considered the best interests of Polish nationalism than any other political group.

The National Democrats are strongest in Poznan—former German Poland—the most highly developed section of the new Poland, and in general character and point of view they might be compared to our own more conservative Democrats and Republicans. They advocate a two-house Diet, the election of a President by the Congress and Senate instead of by popular election, and a conservative agrarian reform which will parcel the larger estates by gradual purchase.

The natural division in the Diet would seem to be between the National Democrats and some sort of coalition of middle ground groups against the Socialistic Left. But as a matter of fact there are several majorities, which divide now this way, now that, depending on the question under discussion.

To the left of the Peasants' party are the Radical Peasants, Socialists—the latter with 35 seats—and various small groups which vote now with the Left and now with members further Right. The communists are not represented in the Diet, and the Socialists, although regarded by many of the more conservative as "antireligious"—Polish Poland, is, of course, profoundly Catholic and many of the Socialists are Jews, either in race or religion—are not "antinationalist" and are regarded as patriotic in the broad sense.

Too Many Clerics.

There are 30 clerical delegates—rather too many, it is thought, even for Poland, and in the next election, it is said, the clerical groups will strive to influence the voting rather than send so many men to the Diet itself. They are of various degrees of enlightenment and toleration, naturally, and when one of the more medieval begins—as happened on the afternoon I visited the Seym—to argue for the necessity of a union between Church and State and the giving to the Church of a political power more in keeping with earlier centuries than our own, his speech is interrupted by constant shouts, boos, and laughter from the Extreme Left.

The Jewish delegates occupy a position corresponding to the curious situation of their people in the new Polish state. The Jews make up about 38 per cent of the population of Poland. In many of the cities they make up half or more than half of the population and the control of trade is largely in their hands.

In this formative stage of the new state they are fighting for all the self-government they can get before the mold is set, so to speak, and they often seem more preoccupied, therefore, with their own struggle for "autonomy" than with the interests of the state as a whole. They are opposed to a Senate, which they feel would effectually block any pro-Jewish legislation which might be initiated in the more popular body, and are regarded by the Polish Nationalists as wishing to set up a state within a state.

Meets in Former School.

The Diet meets in a building which, like the Smolny Institute in Petrograd, used by the Bolsheviks, was formerly a school for young ladies of the aristocracy and named after the Empress Maria Federovna, mother of Nicholas II.

The hall itself was formerly the chapel and its arrangement has scarcely been changed for its secular and sometimes noisy role. The delegates, of whom, from the gallery running down the sides of the long, narrow, churchlike interior, one sees little but the tops of their heads, are like representatives in every other national assembly from Helsingfors to Santiago de Chile except that here and there one notices the robes of the clerical members and a few peasants in the tight, homespun breeches of undyed wool and the braid-trimmed jackets of the Carpathian mountaineers.

$7 a Year Income You Can Bank on, From Each Share, With a Constant Par Cash Market for Your Shares in Case of Need, Make Union Electric Preferred Stock an Ideal Investment

Many other securities, American and foreign, promise one or two per cent a year more than the seven per cent dividend paid on Union Electric Light & Power Company's preferred stock. Mighty few of them can offer you any such certainty of regular and dependable payment of the income promised.

Five thousand St. Louis district men and women, investing their savings in shares of this stock, have voted that "seven per cent sure beats ten per cent maybe."

These shares represent ownership of the St. Louis district's basic electric light, heat and power industry. Each share is backed by more than its par value of state-appraised, state-regulated, income-producing public service property.

Union Electric preferred stock is not a speculation. It is a safe, permanent income-payer—$7 a year in cash on each $100 share, payable $1.75 every three months.

We are now selling the fourth $1,000,000 of this stock, with the state's approval, to finance growth of the business. The buyer of one share is just as welcome as the buyer of a hundred. The price is $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan under which buyers pay $10.20 a month for ten months on each share, draw 5% interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before the last payment is due.

Scullins Win Way to U. S. Cup Final After Two-Hour Battle With Caledonians

St. Louis Soccer Eleven, Playing Worst Game of Season, Requires Two Extra Periods to Defeat Amateur Opponents From Detroit, Score 2 to 1.

Although giving one of the poorest exhibitions of soccer they have shown in any U. S. F. A. cup contest this season, the Scullins of St. Louis yesterday eliminated the Caledonians of Detroit, 2—1, after two hours of play at Cardinal Field.

The St. Louisans will next meet the winner of the Robins-Tebo semifinal for the U. S. title. In the two years that St. Louis has been in the competition this is the second time that a local eleven has reached the final.

While Brady's men won yesterday, they may consider themselves very fortunate. For a great part of the tilt they were really outplayed by the enemy.

The "Caleys," one of the few amateur aggregations in the cup competition, exhibited an eleven that had fine team play and was well versed on the short and long pass. If they had a weakness it was the same characteristic shown by most foreign-born teams that have visited St. Louis—a lack of goal shooters.

For Brady's team it must be said, however, that the forward line was broken up by the absence of Dike Brannigan. Allie Schwarz, who had not played a game in two years, was shoved in at center forward. Under the conditions Schwarz played as well as could be expected; but Allie was "all in" at the close of the first half. He came back strong, though, after the rest period.

O'Hanlon Plays Fine Game.

Then the Scullin halfbacks did not play up to the game they showed against the Bricklayers the week before. The lone exception was Tommy O'Hanlon. "Man o' War" was all over the field and put up a sensational game. Zarchel and Hennessey, however, seemed off their feed, and during the greater part of the battle were hugging the fullbacks. Al Oberle also was off color.

During the first 30 minutes of the contest, the Caledonians, with the wind favoring them and the sun at their backs, had all the better of the argument, and gave "Dutch" Oellerman, the St. Louis "goalie," as well as the backs, all the work they could take care of. In this time the Scullins had very few openings.

Visitors First to Score.

A bit of poor soccer by the St. Louisans enabled the visitors to tally their first goal. The aliens carried the ball down the field, and Oellerman came out after the ball. However, Bob Fraser, captain and center forward of the Caleys, beat him to the ball and headed it into the net for the first point of the game.

This score by the Caleys, however, seemed to be just what was needed by the locals. Following the kickoff, they put on full steam ahead and in a few minutes were banging away at the Detroiters upright. It was 4 minutes later that Allie Schwarz, standing on the penalty line, banged one into the center of the upright. "Goalie" Seay got his hands on the sphere, but it had so much speed that it broke through and rolled over the line, knotting the score.

Inability to find the uprights was the chief failure of the Scullins during the second period. If ever a team had openings, the Bradymen did. In the 45 minutes of play, they had no fewer than 13 real chances to put through the deciding point. But the front men were not equal to the occasion. Either they would shoot wildly past the uprights, or they would slam the sphere against an opponent.

At times, the St. Louisans' efforts to score goals in this period were pitiful. Then the Caley backs had a habit of playing the local front men offside and this spoiled several good chances.

However, the advantage in this period was all with the St. Louis team, as the Caledonians had only one real opening at goal.

St. Louisans Put on Full Steam During Extra Session, Scoring in Four Minutes

In the first extra period of 15 minutes, the locals found themselves, and played their best soccer of the afternoon. Favored by the wind, and with the sun shining into the eyes of the Caleys, they forced matters throughout. The period was only 4 minutes old, when the locals forced two corner kicks in rapid succession.

Emmett Mulvey dropped both of them into the mouth of the goal. Seay made several wonderful "saves," but after a scrimmage, Charley Bechtold hammered one into the net that had whiskers on it. After the game, even the Caledonian players admitted that it was a real shot. The locals kept hammering away, but could not find the net again.

Three minutes from the close of the second extra chapter, the Caleys brought the hearts of the rooters into their mouths, when Kelly sent one at the left corner of the goal. It was one of those shots that seem almost impossible to clear. However, Oellerman was equal to the occasion. He stuck out his foot and shoved the ball behind the line for a corner. Further trouble was averted.

Many Fouls Called.

Fouls were aplenty on both sides yesterday, and at times the tilt became monotonous because of the calling of these by Referee Jack Johnson of Chicago, who handled the contest in good style. In the two hours, 15 fouls were called against the locals and 13 against the Caleys.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The visiting players proved themselves real sportsmen at the completion of the contest, when each and every one congratulated members of the Scullins. In the clubhouse they gave three rousing cheers for the St. Louisans and wished them luck in the final.

Those Detroit players are real boosters for soccer. When receipts of a game do not come up to the expenses, the players dig into their own pockets to make up the deficit. All of them are world war veterans, most of them having enlisted in the Canadian army at the outbreak of war.

The one wish of the Caledonians upon their departure was that they be permitted to return to St. Louis. It is probable they will be accommodated next year for the first holiday attraction of the local league. Manager Jamieson said all his men were satisfied with their treatment in this city.

Jack Johnson, the referee, had a good word for the Caleys. He said that he did not have a single complaint on his work, and added "that a Scotchman is the hardest person in the world to please."

President Healey of the U. S. F. A. saw the game and stated that "if St. Louis hoped to win the championship again this year the team in the final would have to play far better than it did yesterday.

The lineups:

Largest Attendance of Year Sees Local Team Win Soccer Semifinal

THE paid attendance at yesterday's game between the Scullins and Caledonians was the largest at a local soccer game, with the exception of the final between the Ben Millers and Fore River here last season. A little more than 6400 persons paid at the gate, and the receipts were around $4000. The previous high mark was 6100 at the first clash between the locals and Bricklayers.

The total attendance yesterday was estimated at 7500. The spectators were standing five deep at the west boundary of the playing field.

It was a good game for the U. S. F. A. treasury, which was enriched to the extent of some $800. The trip also proved a profitable one to the Detroiters.

Three St. Louis Bowlers in Money in National Event—Chicago Pin Toplers Star.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 14.—During one of the biggest scoring days in the history of the American Bowling Congress, St. Louis stars vied with Chicago and Detroit bowlers for honors. One Missouri double pair and three individuals landed well within the money.

Tavener and Smith, with a total of 1170, formed the best St. Louis pair. Tavener was the big star in the singles, getting away with a 635 that put him in sixteenth place in the standings. Bippen, with 600, and Hammann with 609 were the remaining St. Louis stars to hit their way into the right to assist in cutting the prize melon.

W. Hammann	212	212	185	— 609

Topping off their set with a record two-man team single of 482 pins, Jimmy Blouin and Phil Wolf of Chicago rolled into first place in the doubles, scoring 1287. Following the Chicago pair on the very next squad, J. Votel and H. Carrel of Cincinnati totaled 1286 pins for second place.

Five pairs, four of them from Chicago, yesterday found a place among the 10 leaders, W. Brennan and W. Miner taking fifth with a score of 1231; E. Grothand R. Bergman seventh with a total of 1222, and P. Bruck and R. Hays placing eighth with a total of 1220 pins. W. Conner and F. Miller, another Chicago pair, scored 1210 pins, but the high rolling of the day kept them out of the leading 10.

Chicago also carried off the honors of the day in the singles, J. Hanks shooting games of 243, 226 and 212 for a 681 total, taking third place, with F. Grundel of Detroit scoring a 659 set, tieing V. Ottenwess of Grand Rapids for fourth position.

EISEL IS WINNER OVER MERONEY IN MAT MATCH

Gus Eisel, wrestling instructor at the Stag Athletic Club, defeated Mike Meroney of New Orleans in straight falls, yesterday afternoon. The first fall came after 19 minutes of grappling with a toe hold; while an armbar and half-Nelson brought the second one, 9 minutes later.

Eisel's exhibition was one of the best mat efforts shown here recently. George Baptiste, referee and wrestler of national prominence a few years ago, stated after the match that Eisel showed great ability and promise.

Browns Are Held to Tie.

The Browns, leaders in the Olympian Soccer League, met with a surprise in what proved the feature of yesterday's doubleheader at High School League Field. They were held to a 1-1 tie by the tailend Hamilton Brown team. The Vegacos defeated the Hoover Sweepers, 2 to 0.

There was no scoring in the first half of the feature contest. Hatchard put the Hamilton Browns in the lead with a nice shot after a long dribble. Five minutes before the close of play, the score was evened by a boot from Schemel's toe.

Pertica Praised By Connie Mack For Fine Effort

Former Los Angeles Pitcher, Now With Cardinals, Checks Athletics Easily.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ORANGE, Tex., March 14.—Bill Pertica, who made a belated entry into Camp Cardinal, performed for the first time yesterday in helping the Rickeymen defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 6—3. His work was noteworthy in that, during the four innings he pitched, the Macks got only one hit and no runs. This same performance drew a bit of praise from Connie Mack, the tall tactician of the White Elephants.

"He is the best young pitcher I have seen in a long time," said Mack after the game in Lake Charles. "He had good control and, best of all, his delivery is very deceptive. The men were unable to tell what was coming. They were set for one thing and got something else. On what he showed yesterday, Pertica should be a mighty helpful man to the Cardinals this season."

This, coming from a capable judge like the elongated Cornelius, merely backed up what the other Cardinals had to say about the work of the Los Angeles graduate. There usually are certain things about recruit pitchers just breaking in that distinguish them from pitchers who have been in the league for a year or more. But there was nothing about Pertica's work to indicate that he had arrived in Cardinal camp as a rookie just two days before. He came on the scene in the sixth inning, replacing Bill Sherdel, who had south-pawed during the first five.

Pertica Earns His Spurs.

Pertica had disposed of Dugan and Frank Walker, when a curve ball got away from him and planted itself on Jimmy Dkyes' back. This did not unnerve the ex-Coast leaguer. Johnny Walker was the next hitter and the first ball served to him was right over and he sent up a lazy fly to Heathcote, who resumed his place in center field. This pitching to Johnny Walker pleased the older heads on the Cards.

The fact that Pertica hit a batter did not feaze, in fact, he went about his task as if nothing had happened and a strike was the first offering to the next hitter. In a majority of cases, a recruit losing control momentarily, as Pertica did, would have experienced difficulty in getting out of the hole.

Pertica had disposed of the first two batters in the seventh when Griffin with two strikes on him, singled to center. This proved the one and only hit off the new twirler in the four innings and did no damage as he got Tilly Walker on a high fly to Heathcote. The Athletics were retired in one-two-three order in the eighth and ninth and from the manner in which Pertica pitched and disposed of the hitters, the Cardinals, who visited Lake Charles and saw his work, were as one in expressing the belief that Charley Barrett had picked up a real find for the St. Louis club.

Cards' Fielding Better.

In winning, the club not only put up a good fielding game, but made the most of its base hits. It was the first perfectly fielded game of the series to date by the regulars and this meant something. In previous games, one or more infielders had been kicking the ball about at critical times.

Scott Perry twirled the first five innings for the Macks and the Cards gave him the first drubbing he has received to date in the series. The big righthander has rounded to form early and in the previous games the Cards had experienced trouble in getting to him. However, yesterday was another tale. In the five rounds they kicked Scott for 11 hits and scored the half dozen runs in clusters of two off him. Ed Rommel knuckle-balled the opposition for the last four rounds and, while the Cards hit for three safeties, he blanked the Knot-Hole gang. In all, the Cards poled 14 safeties.

Mann May Worry Smith.

Leslie Mann again distinguished himself. He pounded Perry for a pair of doubles and coaxed a pass off Rommel. When Mann hits a righthander he is himself. If Jack Smith is not getting some good practice hitting he is going to experience trouble breaking into the lineup, provided, of course, that he consents to sign.

With Cliff Heathcote's injured props on the mend, Burt Shotton laid off and permitted the York citizen to cavort in center. Cliff got two blows.

Browns' Hurlers Hold Milwaukee Helpless, 5 to 0

Davis, Palmero and Bayne Pitch Almost Faultless Ball Against Brewers.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOGALUSA, La., March 14.—Manager Lee Fohl today will give his regulars a long session of batting practice, in preparation for the series of two games with the Brooklyn National League champions, the contests being scheduled for tomorrow and Wednesday, at Bogalusa. Fohl wants his men to win by decisive scores and to prove once again the supremacy of the American League. Bill Klem will umpire both games.

The Browns yesterday finished up their two-game series with Milwaukee, the American Leaguers blanking the Association club, 5 to 0. Davis, Palmero and Bayne were sent to the mound for the Browns, and this trio held the Brewers to four scattered hits. Only one of the Milwaukee players, First Baseman Hauser, managed to reach second base, and he remained there when the following three hitters expired on easy chances.

Dixie Davis opened on the mound, pitching the first four innings of the game. Just 12 men faced Davis, a double play in the second inning killing off Del Gainer after the latter had made a single to center field. Emilio Palmero pitched the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, and the Cuban southpaw was touched for but one hit, a single to center by Hauser in the fifth. Billy Bayne, the clever lefthander, on whom Manager Fohl is counting as one of his regulars for the coming season, pitched the eighth and ninth innings, and against his delivery the Milwaukeeans collected two hits, both singles, by Cooney and Hauser.

Slaughter Is Slaughtered.

The Browns had but little trouble solving the offerings of Slaughter, who opened for Milwaukee, collecting four hits and as many runs in four innings. George Sisler came through with a timely drive in the first, while Williams, in the fourth, punched a two-base blow to right, and Earl Smith followed with a triple to the same field.

Against Rabb, who worked the final four rounds of the game, the Browns gathered three hits, two singles and a double by Billy Bayne, and Earl Smith scored a run as the result of a walk, an infield out and a wild pitch. The Browns played faultless ball in the field, save for a wild throw by Billy Bayne.

Hauser opened the eighth inning with a single to center field and Bayne in attempting to catch the runner off the bag, made a wild shot to Sisler, allowing Hauser to reach second base. Sisler on first gave the few fans present a wonderful exhibition of fielding work around the initial sack. Sisler several times took low throws from his teammates on the infield, thereby registering an out instead of an error. George also reached out full length on two occasions and caught the ball with his gloved hand. And it might be mentioned that the fans showed their appreciation of his clever work.

Gleason in Good Form.

Bill Gleason again played fine ball around second base, handling seven chances without making a miscue. The little fellow goes after everything sent in the general direction of second base, and he has always managed to date to come up with the ball and make the shot to first in time to nip the runner.

Tobin Injures Wrist.

In the sixth inning two were down when Tobin beat out one of his famous swinging bunts. He started a steal of second, but changed his mind when McCarthy threw to the middle bag. In getting back to first base Tobin slid in head foremost and in some mysterious manner wrenched his wrist. He was compelled to retire from the game and Phil Todt took Tobin's place in right field.

Marty McManus, the infielder obtained from the champion Tulsa, ball club of the Western League, left here last night for Nashville, where he will visit a physician about his arm. It seems that McManus hurt his arm last year, but continued to play ball. During the winter months he was informed by a learned M. D. that his teeth were the cause of his trouble. McManus being anxious to continue making his living as a ball player, had all his teeth extracted, and now with all his food choppers missing, he discovers that his arm still is sore.

Man Who Twice Beat Dempsey Faces Local Heavyweight in Armory Bout

Willie Meehan, Fat as a Butterball, as Usual, Will Meet Ironman Heitzenroeder—Visiting Boxer Fought Champion Six Times, Losing but Once.

By John E. Wray.

"Everybody else's job seems better than your own," is probably the principle animating the good-natured young hercules, Herman Heitzenroeder, of the South Broadway Athletic Club, in his appearance tonight in the ring at the First Regiment Armory, against Willie Meehan of San Francisco.

Heitzenroeder's athletic job in the past has been that of pinning the enemy shoulders to the wrestling mat, rather than prodding him on the proboscis. But for some time the wrestling business has palled on Herman, while the fighter's job has held many allurements for the husky local heavyweight. Deep in the Heitzenroeder interior, just abaft the left suspender buckle, is a great big yearning to some day try if he cannot bump off one Jack Dempsey; tonight's bout is a step in the big offensive.

Heitz is not too optimistic, but he knows that he is strong and can hit like a mule kicks. Everybody else knows that for sheer gameness he is 24-carat fine. Whether he is too old to acquire the needed speed and skill to advance far along the fistic route remains to be seen.

Heitz characteristically has picked a hard proposition in Meehan. Willie is tough, not because of any murderous hitting ability, but because, despite his physical resemblance to a heavyweight Billiken, he is clever both offensively and defensively. When in the ring he is a "kidder" of high degree.

Faced Dempsey Six Times.

His coast record entitles him to consideration chiefly from the fact that six times he faced Jack Dempsey, five of these coming before Jack rose to title altitude. In the six times they met, Meehan won two decisions, lost one and gained three draws. Their last fight Meehan won a decision over the champion in four rounds.

Meehan, on the strength of this reputation, was exploited through an Eastern tour, fought two or three fights and did fairly well. He lasted 10 rounds with Billy Miske, which is about his greatest claim to fame. None of the critics who viewed his work appeared to think much of him as a possibility for high places.

Heitz Has Had Three Fights.

His experience, however, altogether outclasses that of Heitzenroeder, who has fought only three or four times professionally. He flattened an unknown at Evansville India. Then he fought a tough bird in Hugh Walker and had him on the floor in the second round. In doing so, however, Heitz broke his right hand and the bout was stopped in the seventh round, although Heitz declared the referee erred in stopping the contest, even though he (Heitz) did have but one hand to work with.

His most recent effort was against Paul Murdock, a young Kansas City heavyweight, who lasted less than three rounds. Heitz argues that if both of his hands hold up for the eight rounds tonight, Meehan will not be able to damage him materially, while he himself hopes to corner Willie and stop him.

As to stopping William, it only remains for Heitz to land squarely. The seconds will then escort Wee Willie to his corner. However, hitting Williams seems to be something akin to picking up a globule of quicksilver with a boxing glove.

Four other bouts, two of them also between heavyweights, are on tonight's card.

Owing to the indisposition of Walter Heisner, Leo Shea, well known in Kansas City, New Orleans and other cities as a referee of good standing, will officiate. Shea is a St. Louisan by birth.

Prendergast Team Will Oppose K.K. Eleven for Title

Aggregations Were Winners Yesterday in Municipal Soccer Semifinal Games.

The Prendergasts of the Fairground No. 2 Division and the Keen Kutters, pennant winners in the Saturday division, will next week start a series of three games to decide the Municipal Soccer Association championships. These two aggregations were the winners in the semifinals, played before packed stands at Fairground yesterday.

The Prendergasts humbled the SS. Mary and Joseph team of the Carondelet No. 2 Division, 2—0, while the Keen Kutters defeated the Schumachers, Carondelet No. 1, by the same score.

While the Prendergasts were able to tally only twice, they showed the best team in action yesterday. They completely outplayed their rivals from start to finish. Only sensational work by the SS. Mary and Joseph fullbacks and "goalie" kept them from running up a larger total.

The first point of the game came after 30 minutes of play, McTernan shooting. The final goal came in the second period, with Pepper scoring it.

The Keen Kutters seemed to be able to hold up better under the burning sun than the Schumachers and as a result went into the final. One goal was scored in each half, Drew and Josties scoring the points. The South Siders had one chance to score when Diel cleared a penalty kick from Roach.

The lineups:

Keen Kutters (2).	Pos.	Schumachers (0).

ROBINS AND ERIES TIE AFTER EXTRA PERIODS

NEW YORK, March 14.—A crowd of close to 10,000 soccer fans yesterday witnessed the battle at Harrison Field, between the Erie Athletic Association and Robins Drydock of Brooklyn, in the semifinal round of the annual cup competition of the American Football Association. The result, however, was a tie at 1 to 1, both goals being scored within the first 15 minutes of play. The extra periods were ordered, but failed to break the tie. The game will be replayed at Harrison next Sunday.

Ten minutes from the start, Brown of the Eries crossed from the left to Koelsch, who drove in a beauty that was simply unstoppable. A well placed corner kick by McKenna enabled Sweeney to equalize from a mixup in behalf of the Robins, 5 minutes later.

About the middle of the second half Koelsch headed in from a corner, the ball striking the upright and bounding out. It was a narrow escape for the Robins.

Badgers to Enlarge Stadium.

MADISON, Wis., March 14.—The seating capacity of the university athletic stadium at Camp Randall will be increased to 25,000 before the opening of the football season by the erection of a $40,000 concrete stand with 4000 seats, according to an announcement of the Athletic Department of the University of Wisconsin yesterday.

JAPAN ELEVENTH NATION TO FILE CHALLENGE FOR THE DAVIS TENNIS CUP

NEW YORK, March 14.—With entries closing here today, Japan filed its challenge for the Davis Cup, making the eleventh nation to signify its intention to compete for the international tennis trophy in the 1921 matches. Japan is a newcomer in the historic competition, but the challenge was not unexpected.

The remarkable progress recently made in tennis by players like Kumagae and Shimidzu indicated that it was only a question of time before Japan would be represented.

This entry raises some interesting possibilities in the personnel of the team representing Japan. So far as tennis players in the United States are aware, the outstanding Japanese players at present are Ichiya Kumagae, Zeno Schimidzu and Sesiophiro Kashio. Shimidzu is now in India and it is doubtful whether he can be considered a possibility, but in view of the discussion his game aroused among the Turopean tennis critics last summer, it would seem natural to have him regarded as a member of the team if he can take time from his business for a trip to this country.

COMISKEY SAYS INDICTED MEN CANNOT PLAY FOR HIM UNLESS CLEARED

CHICAGO, March 14.—Charles Comiskey, president of the Chicago American League club, who returned from California last night, declared that no member of his team who had been indicted by the grand jury last fall would ever play for him again unless they were absolutely cleared of the charges made against them.

"These players," he said, "are on my ineligible list. It was not necessary for Judge Landis to put them on his, but I am glad that he did, as it justifies my position. There is absolutely no chance for any of them to play on my team unless they can clear themselves to my satisfaction of the charges made against them by three of their teammates."

President Comiskey plans to remain in the city as long as there is a chance for the cases of the indicted players to be brought to trial, and if any protracted delay is granted he will go to Waxachie to look over members of his team who are in training there.

TRADING QUIET, BUT SELLING PRESSURE DEVELOPS EARLY

Mexican Petroleum and Crucible Steel Chief Objects of Attack and Lose 3 to 5 Points.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Trading on the Stock Exchange was on a quieter basis than on last Friday, but still was moderately active and still brought out marked weakness in a number of heavily pressed specialties. Selling pressure was apparent from the start, Mexican Petroleum and Crucible Steel being the chief objects of attack in the morning and Reading and Atlantic Gulf in the afternoon. At their low points these stocks showed losses of from 3 to 5 points. Taken as a whole the market showed little rallying power, and while more irregularity existed than on recent days of short selling, prices toward the close showed fractional losses predominating among the rails. Among the industrials a number of the active issues had suffered losses of from 1 to 3 points. Call money was at 7 per cent throughout.

Sterling Off Half a Cent.

"Sterling started the day weaker, and with a fairly good volume of business declined to $3.89⅜ in the morning, later rallying to $3.89¾ at which price it was ½ cent below the last of Saturday. Francs showed greater weakness, cables from London stating that they were offered very heavily there. At 6.98 cents, the price here showed a loss of 10 points. The other European exchanges were dull, marks being off 2 points at 1.58 cents. With silver at London up another ⅝ of a penny at 33½ pence, the Chinese monies made sharp rallies, the Shanghai tael gaining 4½ cents at 64½. Rupees gained only ¼ of a cent, and it is reported that India is buying silver and that China has considerable to sell. Canadian dollars continued to decline losing another 19 points in selling at $7.37 cents.

Abrupt Break in Wheat.

"Wheat had a bad break. Opening unchanged at $1.59, the March delivery advanced to $1.60½ on reports of export buying. From this price, however, an abrupt break of 6¼ cents occurred, the quotation showing a feeble rally of ¾ of a cent subsequently. It is evident that with the existing situation in the stock market and with the existing state of gloom in the speculative mind, the commodity markets are receiving little support in the way of outside buying. Trading in cotton, despite a steady Liverpool market, was dull. The May price opened unchanged at 11.50 cents, and after minor fluctuations sold in the afternoon for 11.44 cents.

Improved Ratio Maintained.

"The continued improvement in the reserve ratio of the Federal Reserve system as a whole was maintained last week despite slight decreases in the real reserve position at Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago and Dallas. The latest figure, 50.9 per cent, is the highest since September, 1919, and compares with the low of 42.5, recorded last September. In considering this marked improvement, it should not be assumed that contraction of credit is the chief responsible factor. Quite the reverse is true.

"Nearly three-quarters of the improvement, in fact, may be charged to increased reserve holdings, and four-fifths of this gain is due simply to our importations of gold. Second in importance as accounting for the better ratio is reduced note circulation, which may be credited with nearly one-quarter of the improvement, while reduction in net deposits has contributed only about one-thirtieth of the betterment. If the reserves of the system had remained stationary since last Sepmteber the reserve ratio would stand at only 45 per cent and if we had neither imported nor exported gold the ratio would stand at 46 per cent. Going back to September, 1919, when the previous high ratio was recorded, it may be seen that note circulation was then $350,000,000 less than at present, while net deposits were only $9,000,000 larger. Accordingly it is apparent that current ideas regarding credit contraction are incorrect to a considerable degree."

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 14.—In the collection of over-Sunday developments confronting the markets today there was rather a mixture of good and bad. The week-end bank statements were encouraging with the marked improvement in the position at the New York Clearing House and the continued rise in Federal Reserve Board ratio, this time from 50.8 to 50.9. London dispatches told of more optimism regarding the money outlook there, which was reflected in a better market for British investment securities. It was felt that when the huge tax payments are completed as they will be with the course of the present month, the Bank of England will quite likely see its way clear to lowering the discount rate. As against these favoring incidents in the credit situation at home and abroad, there was still the critical problem of railway wages. The message of the seven railway union heads urging a congressional investigation, while not unexpected, certainly did not put the matter in a brighter light. It lessened whatever hope there might have been of a voluntary acquiescence of the railway employes with the wage cutting plans of the executives.

Under these conflicting impulses the stock market moved with irregularity and considerable uncertainty as to what was the prevailing tendency. It did appear, however, taking the greater part of the list, that more resistance was being offered to professional efforts on the selling side than had been the case last week.

Here and there individual stocks were driven down, among them Crucible Steel, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin Locomotive and Virginia-Carolina Chemical. But the weakness in these and one or two others failed to unsettle the rest of the market as similar driving had done previously. It looked as if under cover of the fall in these specialties as short contracts were being quietly taken in another direction. But these repurchases were not at all urgent and refused to follow prices up.

Again today there was quite a distinction between the movement of sterling and that of francs. French bills were weak, getting down to the 7-cent level which is almost as low as they were when the exchange market was at the bottom of its break following the abandonment of the reparations conference. On the other hand, tserling, while it reacted after a higher opening, was still some 5 cents in the pound above the low of a week ago.

The most significant part about the detailed figures of the Federal Reserve institutions was that nearly all the regional banks in the South and West—that is, in the agricultural regions—increased their reserve percentages last week, whereas the ratio fell at New York and Boston. Wheat opened up sharply on reports of renewal of British Government buying, but subsequently lost part of the gain. With the exception of Reading which was rather heavily sold in the final hour, railway shares were not pressed for sale the way they were last week. On the other hand, they showed no disposition to rally.

The Bond Market.

Weakness in the Pennsylvania Railroad issues was the most important feature in the bond trading today, the same as it had been Saturday. The new 6½s got down another half point to 97¾, completing a loss of 1¼ points from their issue price and 2½ points from the high record made immediately after they had been brought out. The Pennsylvania 10-year 7s, which only a month ago sold at 105, touched 100, which was the figure at which they also had been offered to the public. Later in the day the 7s rallied to 100½. Pennsylvania general 5s, which a week ago were 88 and which had closed on Saturday at 86⅝, sold at 86. These declines were, of course, a reflex of the unsettled railway situation, but it was noticeable that the Pennsylvanias as a group were more affected than most other rail bonds of a similar investment rank. Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s, moving with the stock, were up a point to 81½. There was heavy trading in Burlington joint 4s at 97⅝, and 97¾.

The St. Louis and San Francisco prior lien A's got back to 60 as against last week's low of 59 and the final price of 59½. Missouri Kansas & Texas refunding 4s broke 2½ points to 49½. Among industrials the Chile Copper issues were better, especially the 6 per cents, which had closed on Saturday at 68¼ and reached 69½ this afternoon. The Chile 7s also rose nearly a point from 92½ to 93⅜.

Liberty Bonds were little changed except for a slight advance in the second and fourth 4¼s. French 8s sold at 97½ to 97¼, that is subsequently the same as at the close last week. Belgian 7½s were weak, getting down to 95½.

Rather More Bullish.

There is an increasing tendency on the part of Wall Street letter writers to regard the present period in the market as one of accumulation. It is pointed out that bear raiding, while it is punching holes here and there in individual stocks, is not bringing about any such general weakness as prevailed three months ago. The view is expressed that the market is in the reverse position from what it is in the final stages of a great bull movement. Then individual stocks continue to be pushed ahead to form a screen for profit-taking in the rest of the list. A large section of the market has either stopped going up, or, if it goes up a little in sympathy with the bull manipulation of specialties, promptly comes down again. The reverse of this situation would, it is claimed, be a fairly exact picture of what is happening now. Bear operations are succeeding in uncovering weak spots as, for instance, Crucible Steel today. But these individual downward plunges no longer find the general list as susceptible as it was. Where the general run of prices goes down there is a quick recovery, as soon as the pressure is lifted from the weak shares.

The Cotton Market.

Broadly speaking, the cotton market is still fluctuating between opposing influences. Trade advices from both at home and abroad are more unfavorable, but all reports from the South point to a substantial reduction in acreage. Locally the market opened steady at an advance of 4 points on August, but generally 2 to 5 points lower and active months sold 28 to 32 points below Saturday's closing figures shortly after the call. This made new low ground for the movement, with May contracts selling at 11.21, compared with 12.12, the high point reached on Inauguration day and 11.12, the low record of the season.

Of the cotton coming here from Liverpool, 1012 bales arrived last week and were inspected on Saturday and only 200 bales more are now expected. The National Ginners' Association estimate domestic mill consumption for February at 388,000, compared with 515,000 last year, but the figures show an increase of about 22,000 bales as compared with the January returns.

Crucible Steel.

There was nothing new about Crucible Steel affairs to account for the break in the stock which was one of the main features of the market today. The company's fiscal year does not end until Aug. 21, and no official statement of earnings is available in the meantime. Crucible is said to be operating now at about 20 per cent capacity.

TOBACCO SHARES IN GOOD DEMAND ON CURB

Durant Motors Up a Fraction and Others Steady—Selling Pressure Absent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 14.—There appeared to be an absence of selling pressure on the Curb Market today. Some authorities believed that the selling which has come into the market recently was for the purpose of raising funds for tax payments.

Business was comparatively small, generally being between professionals.

Guffey-Gillespie was in fair demand at the start, but after moving up a substantial fraction there was a reaction on profit-taking. Skelly Oil also rose a fraction, then turned easier. Ryan Consolidated, Elk Basin, Producers and Refiners, Merritt, International Petroleum and several others were largely steady. Maracaibo was in moderate supply. There was some activity in the Standard Oils, the Indiana shares and Midwest Refining being in fair demand.

The tobacco shares were the leaders of the miscellaneous list, British-American Tobacco and Imperial Tobacco being in good demand and higher. Durant Motors was up a fraction and the other motor issues were quiet, but steady. United States Steamship and United States Ship were less active, but were well maintained. United Retail Candy and Sweets were only barely steady.

Mining issues showed less activity than in past few weeks.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Raw sugar was firm early today and holders were asking higher prices. There was no announcement from the Cuban committee since its last allotment price of 5c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.02c for centrifugal, and outside sugars were offered at ¼c above this level.

The market for refined was firm and unchanged at 8c for fine granulated, with some refiners accepting orders on soft grades at 7.75c.

Futures were firmer, reflecting the strength in the spot market, and prices at midday were 6 to 7 points net higher on covering.

Sugar futures closed steady; sales, 1950 tons; April, 5.31c; May, 5.43c; July, 5.64c; September, 5.78c.

COTTON MARKET WEAK AGAIN ON LIVERPOOL CABLES

NEW YORK, March 14.—The cotton market showed renewed weakness today, owing to continued Southern hedge selling and unfavorable Liverpool reports. The opening was steady at an advance of 4 points on August, but generally 2 to 5 points net lower, and active months soon showed net losses of 28 to 33 points, with May selling at 11.31c and July at 11.75c. There was some Wall street buying and covering around these figures, which caused rallies of 9 or 10 points toward the end of the first hour. Liverpool cables emphasized unemployment, financial strain and lack of demand in Lancashire. Trading here was fairly active at the start, but became quiet on the rally.

Trading was much less active later in the morning, but prices held steadier, with May selling up to 11.59c and July to 12.04c, or within a few points of last week's closing figures. There was very little Southern selling after the first half-hour, while some investment buying as well as covering by shorts was reported on the rally. According to latest reports, only 300 bales of cotton are to be brought back here from Liverpool for contract delivery, of which 100 arrived recently, and were passed upon by the local inspection bureau Saturday.

The midday advance was checked by the weakness reported in other markets, which had a sentimental influence, and prices sagged off from the best, with May reacting to about 11.42c and July to 11.85c, or 8 to 9 points below Saturday's close. Trading was quiet and the market was fairly steady at the decline.

WHEAT PRICES TUMBLE ON GRAIN EXCHANGE

Wheat futures tumbled in the trading on the Merchants' Exchange today, March delivery having a downward range of more than 6c and May wheat almost as much. Corn futures ranged off materially under the influence of wheat. Cash wheat was slow in selling, bids being 6c to 7c under Saturday.

Reported export wheat sales estimated at 2,000,000 bushels failed to check the declines. Nor did a decrease of 1,423,000 bushel decrease in visible supply of wheat. Chicago reported stop-loss orders as being responsible for the sharp break.

Irregularity featured the forepart of the session. Wheat had a moderate upturn on report of further sales for export over Sunday, but the ground gained was later lost. Corn futures showed steady undertone in the early part of the day. Northwest receipts were comparatively smaller.

World shipments of wheat last week were 11,647,000 bushels against 10,418,000 previous week; corn shipments, 2,554,000 bushels against 5,207,000, and oats shipments, 471,000 bushels as compared with 1,685,000 week before.

Grain Statistics.

St. Louis grain receipts today were: Wheat, 70 cars local and 113 through; corn, 132 cars local and 36 through; oats, 72 cars local and 38 through; hay, 306 tons local and 176 through.

Northwestern car lots today were: Minneapolis, 307; Duluth, 53; Winnipeg, 294.

Grain stocks in St. Louis public elevators today are: Wheat, 404,240 bushels; corn, 1,038,209 bushels; oats, 658,553 bushels.

Private elevator stocks: Wheat, 57,761 bushels; corn, 101,040; oats, 144,637.

Primary receipts were 1,159,000 bushels of wheat, 1,566,000 bushels corn and 874,000 bushels oats.

Clearances were 901,000 bushels of wheat, 464,000 corn, 13,000 oats and 215,200 barrels of flour.

Changes in visible supply figures for week were: Wheat decreased 1,423,000 bushels; corn increased 3,236,000, and oats increased 155,000 bushels.

LATE SELLING CAUSES BREAK IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 14.—Considerable strength developed in the wheat market today, owing largely to word of export buying at the seaboard. Scantiness of rural offerings tended also to lift prices. Demand here, however, was confined almost altogether to shorts. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 3c higher, with March $1.59 to $1.60½ and May $1.51 to $1.53½, were followed by reactions from initial top figures.

Heavy selling on the part of leading longs ensued and prices dropped rapidly. Industrial and financial conditions were regarded as the main bearish factor. The market closed nervous 3¾c to 4¼c net lower, with March $1.55 to $1.55¼, and May, $1.46½ to $1.46¾.

Corn reflected the action of wheat. After opening unchanged to ⅝c higher, including May at 69c to 69⅝c, the market steadied with part of the extreme gain lost.

Corn prices subsequently underwent a material setback when wheat turned downgrade. The close was weak, 1c to 1¼c net lower, with May 67⅛c to 68c.

Oats were firmer, with other cereals, starting ¼c off to ½c advance, with May 42⅞c to 43¼c, and hardening all around before beginning to react.

Provisions showed weakness as a result of free selling on the part of commission houses.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

F. N. B.—Consult the moving picture magazine for the addresses wanted.

C. K.—It is proper to train young children to call their stepfather by the name of "father."

PEARL BUTTONS.—Julian Eltinge appeared at the Orpheum Theater, St. Louis, in 1918.

TREMONT.—Apply to Street Commissioner at the City Hall, who must know the location of the lot to be filled.

ANXIOUS ONE.—A small copper cent of 1857, is worth from 1c to 5c, while a large copper cent of the same date, is worth from 2c to 25c.

THANKS.—Write to the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, room 106 Statler Hotel, regarding the outcome of the advertising campaign in question.

EDW. C. D.—There is a regular machine for roasting and salting peanuts. Get in touch with some produce commission dealer in order to procure raw peanuts.

A STUDENT.—Go to the Public Library and get a current history of the war, to obtain all the information you wish. Your questions are too extensive for our space.

G. E.—We think the corporation you refer to must be the National Automobile Dealers' Association, which is located in the Rialto Theater Building, on Grand and Olive.

ALEXANDER.—Write to the Milwaukee Journal for the information you seek. Balzac had a literary executor named Charles Ribou, but we know of no such picture as you mention.

CITRA POMPANI.—The blockade on Central Europe was not lifted until after Germany signed the peace treaty. Imports to the Central Empires of Europe were restricted during that period.

E. E. AMERSON—The overhead expense of a firm is all the charges other than the actual cost and expense of handling the articles that the firm is trading in, such as rent, light, heat, employes and incidentals.

MRS. C. H. F.—Baked Spanish mackerel: Split fish, clean, and remove the head and the tail. Put in buttered dripping pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and dot over with butter (allowing one tablespoon to a medium-sized fish), and pour over two-thirds cup milk. Bake 25 minutes in a hot oven.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

X. Y. Z.—You must make out an income tax return if you are requested to do so.

JACOB SCHMID.—Ask the clerk of the court for a certified copy of your citizenship papers.

LINK.—A man can burn his money and not be prosecuted, but he might be sent to an insane asylum for doing so.

SAILOR.—You would have to obtain your citizenship papers unless your father was naturalized while you were a minor.

MISS RIVERS.—You will have to pay a tax on a phonograph. Ask the Circuit Attorney's office about the trial and the money.

A REPUBLICAN VOTER.—You can do all the work yourself in building your home. Consult the Building Commissioner in regards to the type of house you are going to build.

A WIDOW.—You should give your tenant notice to vacate by the 11th of April and if he does not pay what he owes you by March 11, sue him for rent and possession of the house on that day.

THANKS.—Judge Falkenhainer is the Judge in Circuit Court No. 4, Judge Davis is in Circuit Court No. 5. A codicil to a will must be signed by two witnesses, any two will be sufficient.

WORRIED ROMAIN.—We cannot advise you about your rights regarding the furniture unless we could see the contract you signed when you bought the furniture. You should consult a good lawyer.

T. AND S.—The bill of sale would not protect you against the claims of the owner from whom the machine was stolen. There are no steps that you could take that would safeguard you against the claims of the owner.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

MRS. LEE.—At your age, with the symptoms you give, it is advisable that you consult a first-class physician for thorough physical examination, especially of the heart, kidneys and arteries.

CLARA.—The clinics of the medical colleges provide free examination and treatment for the indigent. Apply to the college clinic at Grand avenue and Caroline street or at Duncan and Euclid avenue.

A DAILY READER.—If you have the disease there is more needed than a few injections of 606. You need this followed by a systematic course of treatment of mercury and iodide of potash and the progress checked from time to time by Wasserman tests.

A. C.—If there is no abnormal condition causing the difference in size of your chest on one side as compared with the other, there is nothing you can do to rectify it. If the deformity is caused by some abnormal condition in the chest, the correction of that would, no doubt, correct the deformity.

RUDDY.—For an oily skin, we would suggest steaming the face, dry it, then massage and at night aply one part of Vlemnick's solution to six parts of water, gradually increasing the strength of the solution by decreasing the amount of the water. In the morning, wash the face and rub into the skin a good quality of cold cream.

A SUFFERER.—The main symptom of neuralgia is pain. As the remedy depends on the cause this must be located first. Have a careful examination made of the ears, eyes, nose, throat and teeth, in addition to a general complete physical examination.

AROD.—The removal of tattooing is accomplished by the application, and the tattooing in, of a substance which will cause a destruction of the upper skin surface. For this reason, it should be done by one who is qualified to do such work. Any dermatologist can do this work.

F. A. C.—General and local excessive perspiration is often caused by some derangement of the general health. In this case the cause is likely constipation, and first efforts should be made to correct this condition. The large intestine should be thoroughly flushed by enemas of hot water, repeating this as necessary. Drugs or aperient waters for a time will no doubt be necessary, but dependence on this should be dispensed with as soon as possible. Regular habits, exercise and massage of the abdominal muscles, eating freely of fruit, green vegetables and bran will all be helpful. The following wash dabbed on and allowed to dry may be found useful, locally: ½ dram tannic acid, 1 ounce tincture catechu, 7 ounces spirits vini rectificat.

MAN, 52, SHOT TO DEATH BY WOMAN IN HER ROOM

Homicide Verdict Returned Against Mrs. Mamie Burns for Death of Switchman.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned today in the death of William N. Cash, 52 years old, a switchman, of 1101 Chestnut street, who was shot at 11 a. m. yesterday by a woman known as Mrs. Mamie Burns and as Mamie Martin, 27 years old, in her room at 1030 South Eighth street.

The woman testified that Cash was sent to her room by Sam Shapiro, who conducts the rooming house. He had a half pint of liquor and sent for more. They quarreled and in a struggle a pillow was displaced, revealing a revolver. He tried to get it, she said, but she got it and shot him as he was trying to take it away from her.

Mrs. Matilda Nichols of the same address said she gave Mrs. Burns the weapon Friday when Mrs. Burns said hers had been stolen.

Shapiro denied sending Cash to the woman's room.

Cash was shot three times. Thomas Burns, who rents the room in which the shooting occurred, was not there. The woman told the police that she was Burns' common-law wife.

GEORGE C. BRINKMAN DIES

George C. Brinkman, 33 years old, president of the George C. Brinkman Motor Car Co., 2818 Locust street, and of the St. Louis Rust Proofing Co., Broadway and Poplar street, died last midnight of pneumonia at his home, 627 Clara avenue, after a 10-day illness. He was a brother of Ben G. Brinkman, vice-president of the Lafayette South Side Bank.

He is survived by his wife and four children, the eldest 10 years old. He was a member of the Missouri Athletic Association and captained several of its athletic teams. He had been in the motor car business for 10 years.

CONFIDENT PATIENT IMPORTANT FACTOR IN SUCCESSFUL SURGERY

servants of his brain; who worries about his patients just as long as the worry ferment brews constructive thoughts that will aid in a cure; who will heed Dr. Stephen Paget in his counsel to 'pray to the gods for a fair measure of the love of science, a good memory, a quiet manner, the accurate use of your hands and your senses, the necessity of making money. Pray even for opposites; for humility and pride, for plodding business ways, and for the wings of ambition, for a will both stubborn and flexible; and, above all, for that one gift which has been the making of the best men in our profession, the grace of simplicity of purpose.'

"But even that type of surgeon cannot combine all the surgical factors of safety for you. There remains still one over which he has slight, and you have, or should have, complete control. That factor is you yourself. This is exquisitely a world of compensations. Everything is paid for to the last farthing. For laughter there are tears; for pride, humility; for joy, sorrow; for doubt, assurance; and surgery, beneficent, dramatic, transforming surgery, only too often exacts her toll of anxiety, craven fear and shattered spirit. It is all so natural that surgeons expect it, and yet, were such things measurable, the surgical fraternity could show that no one factor is more desirable than a bravely confident and trusting patient."

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Col. Steve Wagner.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A disparaging letter regarding the record of Mr. Wagner on the School Board was recently printed. "Grade Teacher" alleged that Mr. Wagner's only claim to recognition was his connection with the waste paper collection in the schools.

This teacher needs information. She apparently does not know that Mr. Wagner's vote and influence prevented the purchase of the old Southern Hotel. This saved about $500,000 and permitted two increases of teachers' salaries last year. Again, under pressure of Mr. Wagner and his supporters in the board, the Superintendent brought in a new salary schedule. This schedule was not approved. But through the direct influence of Mr. Wagner a more liberal salary was adopted than the one proposed by the Superintendent. Mr. Wagner has time and again stood for the just recognition of the teacher when others were strong for an elaborate spending program that would have robbed the teacher of a proper recognition in the salary schedule. His rugged honesty, forceful personality and courageous action have been a tower of strength to the teachers.

Although he initiated it, the paper collection is a mere incident in Mr. Wagner's really great six-year record. He often differed with the Superintendent and that difference was often a vindication of the soundness of Mr. Wagner's judgment.

As to the paper collection, "Grade Teacher" knowns that there was a profit last year of $18,000. She knows that the $160,000 interest-bearing fund of the Annuity Association has been built up largely from benefits, entertainments and paper collection profits. Mr. Warner has been a staunch friend for six years. Over 100 aged and incapacitated teachers each month receive a substantial remittance, not a small part of which is made possible through the warm-hearted generosity of the youngsters of this town who, out of the abundance of their youthful energy, have sold tickets for and taken part in benefits or have, it may be, helped to turn one of the waste by-products of modern life, namely, magazines and newspapers, into a channel for reuse and realized a substantial sum of money.

About 6,000,000 pounds of paper have been salvaged since Mr. Wagner started it. This is sufficient to demonstrate that objections from sanitary grounds are unfounded, because there is no evidence of contagion traceable to the collection of paper under the rules.

GENEVIEVE PHELAN.

Sincere and Truthful.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been reading your "Say Something" paper almost since I learned to read and expect to read it as long as I retain the ability to read. But your most sincere and truthful editorial on Woodrow Wilson, was clear facts without fiction. That editorial will go down in history as the opinion of all red-blooded American citizens. Woodrow Wilson's great magnanimous deeds for the betterment of all mankind will shine bright long, long after his calumniators have been forgotten. GEO. W. GRAY.

Ferguson, Mo.

The Swedenborgians Mix Again.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It was with surprise bordering on amazement that I read a recent letter to your paper in which a student strongly hinted that Swedenborg was not the author of "When in Rome be a Romeo," as I had represented, and even challenged me to name the work in which the quotation appears. That one can claim to be a student of Swedenborg and at the same time question the source of that quotation seems unreasonable. It is as if a student of Shakspeare were to ask for the author of Henry of Navarre's "Once more down near the beach, my friends," or a student of Beethoven to ask who wrote "A Fight in an Inn."

But let us be fair. It is certainly possible that owing to their similarity of subject matter and style I may have confused Strindberg with Swedenborg, the former the author of "The New Kingdom" and the latter the author of "The Animal Kingdom." If this is true the student of Strindberg is entirely justified in visiting his wrath upon me and I would welcome more detailed information from him. But after all, the essential is not the author; to quote again: "The Say's the Thing," as Bernard Shaw remarked. A. H. S.

Packing House Odors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Won't you start a movement to do away with the odors which come from the packing houses? These odors have become very disagreeable to residents of this city, and especially to those who have located in the extreme western part of the city, where such fumes should never be tolerated. It is becoming very common for this terrible smell to reach as far as 7200 west. Such odors are detrimental to health and welfare. May you advocate in the best way the abolishment of this evil.

READER.

HOW YOUR MONEY IS SPENT.

There is a refreshing frankness and a business directness in the brief interview with James W. Byrnes, the nonpartisan Democratic candidate for Mayor, which was printed in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. Speaking of the taxpayers, whom he said he would try to interest in the things he would discuss, he remarked, "every man who pays rent, or an electric light bill, or drops a street car fare in the box is included under the head of taxpayers."

These people bear the burdens of the taxes through their rentals, purchases and carfares, light and heat bills. They need an honest, capable, conscientious head of the municipal government to look after their interests, to see that they are treated justly, that they have adequate service and reasonable charges for the service. The interests can take care of their business, but the plain people must have their interests cared for by those in authority charged with this trust.

We regret to say that the interests of the people have been sadly neglected for the benefit of the special interests for eight years.

Mr. Byrnes says he will handle his own campaign and will "deal with facts and appeal to common sense and intelligence and perhaps now and then to the voters' sense of humor."

In his campaign he promises to analyze so far as possible the city's business and suggest what ought to be done, which will be a valuable public service whether he is elected or not.

If elected he promises to devote his whole time to the city's business and to know precisely how the taxpayers' money is expended and whether the service or the goods are delivered.

This is a large and important task, well worth the labor of a citizen of public spirit.

The campaign, if conducted on the lines indicated by Mr. Byrnes, will demonstrate whether the voters of St. Louis want a nonpolitical business administration in the city hall or a partisan machine government.

DUBLIN'S PEACE DISCUSSIONS.

It is stated "on excellent authority" in reports from Dublin that the British Government and Sinn Fein have been conducting peace negotiations, through members of the Irish Labor party, acting as intermediaries, and that substantial progress has been made.

In the light of other news from Ireland such assertion may seem rather rosy. With attacks from ambush by one side and acts of violence by the crown forces, in which loss of life and destruction of property are of almost daily occurrence, progress towards peace sounds more like an aspiration than a fact. And with Premier Lloyd George stipulating a cessation of attacks on the King's troops as prerequisite to a discussion of peace terms and Sinn Fein demanding withdrawal of the Government's forces before peace can be considered, the Dublin story taxes credulity.

Nevertheless, it is through discussion that the present intolerable condition of things in Ireland will be ended. It is preposterous to imagine that Ireland can muster sufficient force to overpower the British empire. It is equally preposterous to imagine that the British empire will exterminate the Irish people by force. The way to a settlement lies through discussion. That is the only way. And both sides, obviously, will have to make concessions.

The present peace parleys at Dublin may fail. Future parleys may fail, too. But eventually a conference will be held out of which will come peace.

CENSORSHIP LEGITIMIZED.

In sustaining the lower courts which have refused to issue a mandamus requiring the Postmaster-General to restore the mailing privileges of the Milwaukee Leader, Victor Berger's organ, the Supreme Court in effect legitimizes the arbitrary right of censorship in the United States.

We see no way to avoid this conclusion. The court states that the case was brought up on the apparent theory that this Government, "competent to fight a foreign enemy," is helpless to fight "an insidious enemy at home." But that is not the theory voiced in the dissenting opinion of Associate Justice Brandeis when he says that any issue of the Leader violating the law could be barred, but that there is no power to bar a publication indefinitely.

This, it seems to us, is the fundamental issue at stake—the right of the Government, through any executive official, to impose an arbitrary censorship which may be indefinitely maintained. The right of the Government to "fight an insidious enemy at home" would not be denied in merely denying the Postmaster-General the arbitrary power of virtual censorship or persecution. If such right is constitutional, let Congress act for itself in the matter and utilize in law whatever right it may have to enforce its will.

In all probability the announcement of the decision will pass without a ripple over the heads of a busy people. We are not predicting any immediate suppression of free expression in the United States on account of it. Nevertheless, the legal tools of arbitrary suppression of the press lying close to the hands of a Government official are a dangerous and exotic part of the equipment of a democracy, and may, with the compliance of a crass or impassioned majority, become the actual instrument of a denial of our liberties.

LEAGUE VERSUS DOCTRINE.

The recent cat-clawing between the midget republics of Panama and Costa Rica, in which popular American interest has registered at about zero, contains possibilities, if not a likely prospect, of precipitating one of the most delicate international situations of recent times. It may become the occasion of a test of ascendancy between the League of Nations and the Monroe Doctrine.

In 1914 a strip of territory in dispute between the two republics was awarded to Costa Rica through the mediation of Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court. But Panama failed to relinquish possession and last month the Costa Ricans proceeded to claim their award by force. One of the first acts of the Harding administration was to order, in an identical note to each belligerent, a cessation of hostilities and the withdrawal of troops from the disputed territory. Costa Rica promptly complied, but, while Panama withdrew her military forces, her civil authorities remain in possession and her reply to the State Department's recent note is understood to be unsatisfactory.

It was indicated some days ago by the Costa Rican Government that, having failed to secure an enforcement of its rights after complying with the decisions of President Loubet of France and Chief Justice White, it would appeal its case to the League of Nations. Now it is expected by some officials in Washington that Panama, dissatisfied with the White award, will do the same.

If these nations, both members of the League of Nations, should agree to place their case before the League, what, in all conscience, could the United States do about it, without assuming a deliberate sovereignty over the disputants?

The convenient, undefined latitude of the Monroe Doctrine presumes a sort of parental function on the part of the United States, with a view to protecting small American states from the encroachment of Old World Powers. But there is no way in which an appeal by two of these states to the League of Nations for the settlement of a dispute can be tortured into an encroachment of Europe upon the rights of nations on this continent. The successful consummation of such an appeal would mean the beginning of a new day in Pan-American politics, and what can Washington do except yield to this merging of the Monroe Doctrine in the League of Nations?

THE DISARMAMENT DILEMMA.

The new administration's problem of a naval policy had reached the stage of a dilemma even before the inauguration. This dilemma consisted of the fact of a unanimous vote of the Senate in direct opposition to the published opinion of the administration as voiced by the new Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. Denby makes no qualification of his belief in "a navy the equal of any other." After his return from St. Augustine, where he conferred with the then President-elect, the two doubtless coming to an understanding on naval policy, he told the Associated Press:

> We are a Power of such extent, with an immense Atlantic coast line, with vital interests in the Caribbean, with a great Pacific coast line and the Hawaiian group, which must be held at whatever cost, together with the Philippines beyond, that a navy the equal of any other seems justly and naturally called for.
> I believe in and urge a strong first line of defense. This is not because of fear of war, because I do not believe war impends, and it cannot come upon us if we are armed and ready now and for many years to come. Primarily my duty will be to help keep the navy and marine corps not only ready to fight, but fit to fight and trained to the minute.

There are no "ifs" or "ands" in this statement. A man whose position is settled with regard to the advisability of primacy in naval power would find no object in the calling of a conference of Powers to consider the reduction of armament. Mr. Denby's imagination already has been fired with the nice reasoning of the professional navalists, whereby it may be shown that with the balance of civilization mobilized against us, as it never has been and never will be unless we aspire to the role of a second German empire, we shall need such and such a navy.

Mr. Harding had had it all fixed up with the leaders of the Senate that the original Borah resolution, calling for a conference on disarmament, should be shelved for the purpose of not embarrassing the new administration. He had a right to believe, of course, that an equivalent would not be passed in another form. But his expectations were disappointed. While the naval bill itself failed to come to a vote before the close of the session, the Senate formally committed itself by passing unanimously an amendment to that bill calling for such a conference as that provided in the original Borah resolution. In other words, without accomplishing anything toward the calling of a disarmament meeting, the Senate double-crossed Mr. Harding by presenting him with an "embarrassment" which, it was agreed, should be avoided. Meanwhile Mr. Denby had publicly revealed the deliberately agreed Harding policy. To come to an agreement on the subject now either the Senate or the executive must reverse itself.

THE CHARWOMAN.

I MET her on the street one day
And she smiled at me.
She was stooped and weathered-grey,
Like an ancient tree.
Her face was sad; in fact so worn
I thought her the very most forlorn
Of all humanity!
Along the crowded thoroughfare
Apparently she dreamed;
No one saw her, no one seemed
To even care.
When suddenly she looked at me
Spellbound I stood,
And looked into her eyes
Where dwelt the radiance of the skies
And other things as good.
Folks looked with many a queer grimace,
For feeble and very old was she—
And disheveled, too;
But the love in her eyes illumined her face,
And then I knew
That though shackled her body, her soul was free—
And that was why she smiled at me!

THE DEVIL.

Of late years the public hears very little about the above fellow, although he is the biggest profiteer in what he deals in than any other individual that traverses the earth, "seeking whom he can devour." A great many orators hit around the edges of the bushes wherein he often hides, but real hot shots at this fellow are few and far between. We often hear a lot of flowery remarks about fighting sin, but the devil is not brought into the limelight as much as he should be. We listeners hear too little of the wrath of God, and not by far enough of real eloquent biffing of the devil. Possibly this is conforming to the latter day style of pulpit oratory, originated, perhaps, in order to not "step" on somebody's toes. About right, isn't it?

But, back to the devil. He is the most cunning, wide-awake, low-down cuss we have ever met. In fact, we tip our hat to him in recognition of the biggest liar that ever paraded or ran unseen along the thoroughfares of this old world. He undoubtedly is a humdinger and a dinghummer when it comes to stirring up the devil down here below. He can create more devilment in one day than a bunch of lions turned loose by Sells-Flotos circus. He can get a man or woman wound up so thoroughly in devilment in an hour's time that it requires the remainder of their days to get out of it. As a getter, the devil can get your goat, pull the horns off and then turn 'round and bean you with them. He can get you in trouble clean up to your neck and ears and then stand off and grin at you with sweet consolation. He has been getting folks into trouble ever since he got kicked out of Heaven, and from reading the daily and weekly newspapers it appears that his power increaseth as the days go by. He has countries at war with each other, and wrangling and rag-chewing all over the land. He trys to pull down all that is right, and it keeps God's people busy plugging up the holes where he let the folks get out. He is getting the country into a fox-trot, bunny-hugging, shimmying habit that is growing as fast as chinch bugs do in the corn fields every year. He has educated and cultivated a bunch of greedy grabbers who outdo the money-changers whom Christ kicked out of the temple hundreds of years ago. He is turning out egotists, gossipers, liars and thieves by wholesale every day, and the prospects do not look good by any means for a cessation on his part very soon.

Revival meetings appear to have taken on new life, and are springing up all over the country every day, but the folks who are doing the work are having a serious time keeping the devil out.

Did you ever meet this guy? If you haven't, then you are the first one; and besides, are not a normal human being. He sometimes gets into the biscuits at the morning meal and keeps a bad taste in a fellow's mouth the rest of the day. In fact, he attempts to get himself into most everything that comes along. And it isn't his fault if he doesn't accomplish his purpose, for he has more ambition than Bill Bryan has in reorganizing the Democratic party. If the devil can't get in the front door, he comes around to the back one. Somehow he has power enough to kick in an iron door, and he does it easily. There is only one bar against him that he can't budge, and that's the Gospel. He is a fine debater, but any intelligent human being can whip him to a frazzle if they fight him with the promises in the Book of all Books. The minute the devil scents scripture, he is gone like a Kentucky race horse getting off the mark.

Time once was when the old-time preachers talked the devil and his ways so strong that a fellow who listened was almost afraid to walk home in broad daylight. A little of this sort of argument now might help lasso a multitude of folks who seem hell bent on beating others to it.

In Christ's time there were men with seven devils. That is beaten now by one-half and more. There are men today who have been possessed of 17 devils for a long time. There are, perhaps, people on earth today who can easily beat the devil at his own game.

"The devil!" you say. Yes, that's about right.

The Missouri Legislature goes right ahead with its censorship of moving pictures, just as if there had never been a word of protest from any quarter save that in which the moving picture people howl with dismay. When we do not know who the censors would be, we cannot imagine how far a censorship would go. They say it has worked in Pennsylvania, but since Pennsylvania is the American Siberia we are distrustful of any precept from that State. We would like to talk to some broad-gauged Pennsylvanian, if there is any such, and see what his impression of it has been. To a fanatic all fanaticism is effective, just as prohibition is a howling success by the testimony of any dry. However, the people of Missouri seem bound to impose censorship upon us. The country legislator is for it, having been stirred up by the discovery that almost all literary classics are appearing in films under sex titles. They love the classics out in Missouri. It means nothing to us that "The Admirable Crichton" of Sir James Barrie has become in the movies "Male and Female," or that any other fine thing in literature has been prostituted by title to the base tastes of the movie-going public; but Missouri cares. They don't mean out in the State to see "The Iliad" of Homer assume some erotic title that will introduce it to the followers of Theda Bara, or the plays of Shakspeare wear the scandalous livery of sensualism. We may be the thirty-fourth State in education, but we are one of the front States in defense of the classics. William Allen White complains that one of his books has been filmed under a title which made it unsafe for him to go back to Kansas, and he says this is the common lot of authors in our decadent time. Well, relief is coming from the Missouri interior. Hold the fort, Bre'r White! the dawn is nigh!

Sir: No doubt you have become by this time so hardened to misuse of the apostrophe that no sort of apostrophic horror can move you, but I want to tell you about a letter I saw the other day. It had been typed by a stenographer who was none too sure of herself, and in every one of several instances in which it spoke of cant-hooks she put an apostrophe in the cant. I am not one of your licensed guardians of the alphabet and its various attachments, being a builder of can'tilever bridges. However, I am operating when occasion offers as a plain clothes man for the preservation of such culture as we have, and wish you more than your won'ted luck. M. H.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

LLOYD GEORGE AND GERMANY.

From the London Herald (Labor Paper).

A BOOK which Mr. Lloyd George is fond of quoting tells us that we should love our neighbors as ourselves; but perhaps the word "neighbor"—like, apparently, the word "reparations"—is susceptible of various meanings. Germany broke a treaty at the beginning of the war, therefore it is all the more necessary, argues Mr. Lloyd George, to insist upon the fulfillment of treaties now—especially the Peace of Versailles. But what if the terms of the treaty cannot possibly be kept? And what if they themselves constitute the tearing up of a scrap of paper? The allies signed the armistice with Germany on the basis of reparation for damage done to their civilian population and that population's property by German aggression, and definitely promised not to exact "annexations, contributions, or punitive damages." The allies promptly broke their word; but the point is rather academic, seeing that no one expects any capitalist Government to keep its word.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.

From the New York World.

THE fate of the Dillingham immigration bill was settled satisfactorily by ex-President Wilson's pocket veto, but the immigration question is as far from being settled as ever. Just as certainly as we do not as a nation want the 3 per cent rule which would arbitrarily bar out large numbers of some race we do want some regulation of the influx of foreign workmen and their families. To admit as much is not to repudiate the old liberal ideal of the United States as a refuge for those oppressed. By their mere numbers the new-comers are bringing down the standards of living in congested industrial centers until we shall shortly offer no refuge to the uneducated, non-English-speaking laborer who lands without money or influence on our shores. The owners and managers of factories and mines find foreign laborers, especially when broken up into language groups, more easily driven and less capable of effective resistance than native-born Americans. A great part of the insistent demand for unrestricted immigration comes from districts where hours are too long and wages too low for the maintenance of the usual American standards. Yet when the question of the method of restriction comes up we are on most uncertain ground. To discriminate against nationalities appears unfair, and the application of a blanket rule, as in the Dillingham measure, works out unfavorably toward the newer elements in immigration. There is every reason for facing this problem squarely and at once, for action cannot be long postponed.

INTERNATIONAL CONFIDENCE.

THOMAS W. LAMONT in Harper's Magazine.

NOT a few of our politicians have been casting distrust upon the motives of our fellow nations; they have told us that they are tricky and that we must watch out for snares. So far as my own experience goes, both statements are untrue. We Americans are no doubt a very fine people, but there are other peoples on the earth who are just as honest and self-sacrificing as we are. If we are to accomplish anything in helping to build up this world, somewhat broken in spirit, and in trade and commerce very badly broken, we must cultivate a spirit of trust, rather than distrust. We must arrange for close association, for constant comparison of ideas with our friends across the sea. We must try to arrive with them at a common understanding, and be moved with a spirit of sympathy for the terrible disasters that they are working through and that are linked up to our own lesser troubles. If in that spirit we approach these international problems, then indeed we shall achieve something and can move forward with confidence in what the future holds in store.

Calling Out The Best Side

By Sophie Irene Loeb

THE other day I overheard some people talking about a very mean man who has a considerable sum of money. They said: "How his wife stands for him is more than I can understand. Who ever would want to marry an old grouch like him? He hasn't a smile or kind word for anybody. What does he get out of life, anyway? He never does anything of any good and doesn't seem to care for anything or anybody. I pity his family." And so on and so on.

Now it happened that I went to the home of this man for dinner. And I learned a whole lot. I found that they were the happiest of families—the wife and the two daughters and this seemingly mean man.

After the meal, when my hostess and I were alone, I found the answer to the queries put by the women mentioned above. I had spoken to her about how quiet and reserved her husband was.

"Oh, yes," answered the wife blithely, "many people think he is the meanest man on earth. They call him a stingy old Scrooge—they do not think he has a human trait in him. And, altogether, they think he is a very bad man," she added smilingly.

"The truth is, the people who know him best will find the very opposite in him," she continued. "He is the best man in the world if you will only try to call out his best side. Many people do not take the trouble to do that and he doesn't take the trouble to present it.

"He is kindness personified. He does hundreds of things that nobody knows anything about—human things. He takes pleasure in giving a boy a chance wherever he finds him. He encourages my girls to invite their poor comrades at school to come home with them and spend some time with us. Whenever he hears of a man in his employ whose family is struggling to get somewhere he always urges me to go and see them and ascertain their requirements, and then we do what is most needed.

"Yes, he is a quiet man. He talks very little, but he does things. He has the most loving nature in the world. His affection for the girls is almost idolatrous. He does have a stern exterior, I will admit, but it is only outside. His heart is in the right place, but many people fail to find it. They do not approach him right.

"They think he is hard and cold and they themselves stiffen up and become hard and cold when they try to reach him, when if they would just be human-like he would respond without any trouble. It is just his way to look stern and difficult to meet. But when you know him it is altogether different."

How true this is of many people! Sometimes we form a great dislike for a person and almost hate him. We cannot see anything in him and wonder what use he is anyway.

Yet, if you only stop to consider, somebody likes that person. Somebody has found something nice about him. Somebody has called out that side of his personality which is enjoyable. And perhaps you and I have failed to do it.

Take many a married couple. We often say: "How could that girl ever have married him?" or vice versa. But, after all, she must have learned the nice side of that man, she must have called out the best of him, or she would have seen him just as you and I did, and not cared for him at all.

The whole thing is worth while thinking about anyway. Why do we like or dislike? Why are we attracted or repelled by certain people? There is only one answer: We have somehow secured from them a response of the kind we wanted. In a word, we have called out the person we wished to see—the best side of that person.

And, strange to say, there is a "best side" to everybody. And it is all wrong to form dislikes too hastily. Every effort should be put forth to bring out the best side of a person before we close our hearts against him.

Many a fine friendship is saved by second thought and a little effort to find that best side.

RICH FOOTWEAR SHOWN

FOOTWEAR for the home is just as ornate as that which is worn out-of-doors. Rich brocades, bright colored satins, elaborated with painted and embroidered designs, go well with the gorgeous tea gowns and negligees now in vogue.

Some of these show gayly colored heels, such as sapphire blue with cloth of silver or emerald green with gold brocade. Then they are cut in many unusual styles with various straps and shimmering buckles and buttons that add not only to their cost but also beauty.

Indeed, at this time you may choose fascinating footwear for every hour of the day, for fabrics are unusually lovely, especially when combined with the bright-hued leathers that are so much in evidence.

TO LENGTHEN CURTAINS

IF your window curtains shrink in washing, piece them down from the top and make a frill which will extend across the whole window, and long enough to cover the piecing. The frill may be of a contrasting color and materials. Many interior decorators prefer the contrast. Old window shades may be made to look like new by painting each side with a thin coat of paint.

It Isn't WHAT the Girl Does; It's Just the WAY She Does It

Also, of Importance, It's Not WHAT She Wears, but the WAY She wears It.

Lessons on the Art of "Doing" and "Wearing" Taught by Girl Reserves.

IMPROPER MANNER WHEN TRAVELLING
PROPER MANNER WHEN TRAVELLING

IT isn't so much what a girl wears—it's the way she wears it.

And it isn't so much what a girl does—it's the way she does it.

Those two sentences sum up the motto of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. at Ridgewood, N. J.

If you don't believe this is true glance at the two pictures which illustrate this article.

In one picture you will see two girls, both wearing sweaters, sport skirts and sport hats. Nothing wrong about their clothes, but WHAT a difference in the way they wear them!

The first girl has put her clothes on straight, her skirt hangs as it should, her sweater is pulled about her figure and sets evenly all the way round, while her hat is put on at an angle which immediately commands self-respect.

The second girl has just thrown her things on. Her skirt is ill-hung, her sweater bags and twists in all sorts of fantastic shapes, while her tam is put on in a most rakish fashion.

Naturally both girls stand as they are dressed. One figure evinces that of a proper, self-respecting girl, while the other immediately gives the impression of a slouchy, don't-care-what-I-do girl.

No sane man would flirt or insult the first girl, but the second girl is in danger no matter where she goes.

Now glance at the picture of two girls who are on a train.

Both girls are reading, but what a difference in the way they read!

The girl on the left is plainly out for a good time. She has a sort of "Barkis is willing if you are" appearance for her fellow passengers, ready to smile or flirt. Of course "someone" will speak to her before she has traveled three stations.

The girl on the right is really reading. She is demure and reserved, strictly minding her own business. Please note the Literary Digest—enough to frighten any man away!

Therefore, girls, it isn't the man, it's you—you and the way you wear your clothes, and the way you do things.

Some girls can hold a position for years among some pretty gay men and yet they are always respected and highly regarded. Give another girl that position and in one week she will complain of those very men.

A young lady I know traveled all over the country for six years. She met all types of men in her business dealings, but told me she had always had the most courteous treatment from all. When she was married a younger sister stepped into her position. In three months she resigned, saying she could not endure the insults which were showered on her.

One had only to glance at the two sisters to know the reason. The first girl was not a prude. She used her rouge and lip-stick, wore the latest clothes and high-heeled boots, but she wore them well. There was a dignity and poise about her. And she knew "how to make her eyes behave."

Her sister used the same brand of rouge, the same sort of lip-stick and went to the same tailors and boot shop, but she wore her clothes loosely; she sat about in awkward attitudes, and her manner was that of a girl out for pleasure rather than business.

Oh, no, Genevieve, it isn't so much what you wear at all or what you do; it's just as the Girl Reserves say—"it's the way you wear 'em, and the way you do it." Get your clothes on straight, assume the military attitude, mind your own P's and Q's and mashers will keep their distance.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

When a Black Bear Isn't Black.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

PETER RABBIT fairly danced with excitement as he listened to Buster Bear. Once or twice he swallowed as if something went down hard. The instant Buster stopped speaking, Peter was ready with one of his ever-ready questions.

"Did I understand you to say that that stranger is Mrs. Buster?" he demanded.

"You did, unless there is something wrong with those long ears of yours," replied Buster.

"But she can't be," declared Peter very positively.

Buster's small eyes opened their widest. "I would like to know why she can't be," said he in his deep, grumbly, rumbly voice.

"Because she isn't a Black Bear and you are," declared Peter quite as if this settled the matter.

"She is, too, a Black Bear. She is just as much a Black Bear as I am," growled Buster.

"Why, Buster Bear, how can you say such a thing?" exclaimed Peter. "Don't you think I have eyes? She isn't any more black than I am! She is brown. She is wearing one of the brownest coats I've ever seen. The idea of saying she is black when she is brown! The very idea!"

"I didn't say that she is black. I said she is a Black Bear, and she is," growled Buster.

"Well, if that isn't the same thing I would like to know why," snapped Peter, who was beginning to lose patience.

Buster Bear looked over to where the stranger Bear was busily digging roots out of the soft earth and eating them as greedily as if this was the first meal she had had for a long time, as indeed it was. His eyes twinkled with mischief.

"Go over and ask her if she isn't a Black Bear," suggested Buster.

"No, thanks," replied Peter shortly. "I don't have to. There is nothing the matter with my eyes. Her saying that she is a Black Bear wouldn't change her color, at all. If ever there was a brown coat it is the one she has on this very minute."

"True, Peter, true," replied Buster gravely, though the twinkle was still in his eyes. "Her coat is brown. I haven't said it isn't. Just the same, she is a Black Bear."

Peter looked at Jumper the Hare and shook his head hopelessly. "Did you ever hear such nonsense?" he demanded.

"What kind of a Rabbit are you?" demanded Buster Bear abruptly.

"A Cottontail," replied Peter promptly. "Everybody knows that."

"And if you changed the color of your coat you would still be a Cottontail wouldn't you?" persisted Buster Bear.

"Certainly, of course. What a foolish question," retorted Peter.

"Well," replied Buster, "Black Bear is simply the name of the species to which I belong. If my coat turned snowy white, which it won't, I would still be a Black Bear. Not all Black Bears have black coats. Some have brown coats like Mrs. Buster's. A lot of people think that just because their coats are brown they are a different kind of bear and call them Cinnamon Bears or just Brown Bears when all the time they are true Black Bears. I've never asked her, but I dare say that Mrs. Buster's father and mother wore black coats. So there you are, Peter. Mrs. Buster is simply a brown-coated Black Bear. What's in a name, anyway?"

"Nothing, nothing at all, if you ask me," asserted Peter, staring very hard at Mrs. Buster and scratching a long ear with a long hind foot. And again he swallowed very hard once or twice.

UNCOMMON SENSE

Tackle the Biggest Job First.

By JOHN BLAKE.

IN the old-fashioned battle royal, where half a dozen men equipped with boxing gloves get into a fight together, the wise contestant disposes of the biggest man first, if he can.

After that he can take the little fellows one by one, and the job is comparatively easy.

There is always a particularly hard and disagreeable task in every day's work. Sometimes it is distasteful because it is mere drudgery. Oftener you put it off because you are not quite sure of your ability to accomplish it.

But no matter why it is objectionable, tackle it and get rid of it. The others will be easier after that, for you will have a sense of superiority when that one job is out of the way.

If every day's work were pleasant this would be a paradise on earth, and there would be no need of preachers or moralists or editorial writers.

But, unfortunately, in every life there is much work that is disagreeable and difficult. Men who are supremely able, do these tasks energetically, buoyed up by the knowledge that they must be done in order to attain the object or purpose that actuates every great life.

That, of course, is the best way to dispose of them, but we are not all great or purposeful. We all do want to get along as well as we can, however, to make the most of our abilities no matter what they may be.

And we will get along better and faster, and with less trouble if we are not afraid of the unpleasant jobs, but sail into them with all our energy at the beginning of the day, when we are fresh and optimistic.

Real productive work, that gets us along our way is, or ought to be, agreeable. Use that as the reward for the accomplishment of the harder tasks. Look forward to it. The pioneer enjoys building his house. Clearing away the forest for a place to build it on, is not so pleasant. But he must do it, and the sooner he gets it over, the sooner he can go to work on the house.

FULL MOON

SECOND INSTALLMENT

Stuart was so engrossed with the unspeakable beauty of this panorama that it was not until several seconds later that he became fully aware of the figure in the foreground; a man sitting on the porch of the ranch house, reading a newspaper, his legs, encased in riding breeches and puttees, cocked up on the railing before him. Apparently he was totally unaware of Stuart's approach. Stuart rode a few feet further and dismounted, throwing his lead rope to the ground so that the pack horses could reach the luxuriant grass. He walked up to the porch and crossed to the man's side, his spurs and high-heeled boots ringing and clattering on the boards. Over the man's shoulder he caught sight of the heading of the paper he was reading; it was a New York Sun, six weeks old. Without turning his head the man spoke.

"Tie your horse up!" he said sharply, but with no particular interest. "I have trouble in keeping this place decent as it is." The accents were those of culture.

The remark was so unexpected, so preposterous, the stolid inattention so uncanny, that Stuart's carefully prepared introduction stumbled on his lips.

"Hurry up!" said the man.

Behind them, another voice, calm and hoarse, spoke, "Yes! Yes!" it said judicially. "Get to hell out of here!"

Stuart, his face flaming with anger, wheeled. The situation was passing the bounds of acceptance. His irritation dissolved into laughter. From a cage set beneath the eaves of the porch a magpie looked down at him with head on one side and beady eyes alert and inquisitive.

"That's Billy," explained the man in the chair. "I have taught him what I find is a useful phrase."

"Thanks!" said Stuart, curtly. "I'll be off."

The man sprang from his chair. "Oh, don't do that!" he begged in tones of genuine concern. "I haven't talked to a civilized member of my own sex for months. Oh, don't do that! You misunderstand me. At first I thought from your clothes that you were a cowboy. I have my reasons for—I'm not particularly fond of the native Westerner. I'll put your horses up for you in the barn."

He was an exceedingly tall man, topping Stuart's six feet by at least two inches; tall and thin; but his thinness was steel-like and well muscled. From a brown flannel shirt, open down to the second button, arose a powerful sunburned neck. Above this, a sharp auburn beard, streaked with gray, ran up to cheeks weatherbeaten and slightly sunken. It was the eyes, however, that particularly arrested Stuart's attention. There was something about them, he decided, that made them the most uncomfortable eyes he had ever seen. Just what this was he could not be sure; possibly a cold, almost cruel, indifference, but more likely, he thought, a sly, immense egotism, such as he had seen before in the eyes of elderly, lonely men, but never to such an extent.

"Very well!" he said, mollified. "Let's be going, then!"

They led the horses out to a barn beyond the house. From a box stall, roughly made, a coal black filly raised her head and whinnied. Prendegast's gray eyes lost their opaqueness and shone with unexpected tenderness. "That's Flossie!" he said. "I broke her this year." He took the satiny neck between his arms and whispered in the filly's ears. Stuart with difficulty began to relate what he heard to what he was seeing. At all events Prendegast, whatever he was and whatever he had done, was displaying an unexpected angle of character. His quick sympathies found themselves ready to enlist on the side of this lonely and, so he was beginning to think, much misunderstood man.

Prendegast let go of the filly's neck. "I'm fond of animals," he said. "Would you like to see my menagerie?"

He guided Stuart to the back of the house, where there was an open space of grass before, a hundred feet away, one came to the serried pines of the forest. Along the log wall were arranged half a dozen large packing boxes, and near these extemporized shelters, in various attitudes of sleep or a searching for food, was a curious assortment of creatures; a badger, a weasel, a deliberate and charming skunk, two wild geese, and a raven. They sprang to attention at Prendegast's arrival and watched him with eager and understanding eyes. The geese, in single file, fell in behind him with ridiculous waddling, military precision.

"You mean," said Stuart, "that they never hurt each other?"

Prendegast spoke with such simplicity of conviction that his words did not sound absurd. "Never!" he said. "If they did they would know what to expect."

He approached the further box, the door of which was closed, and, lifting a trap, thrust in his hand. "This is my latest friend," he said. "I found him yesterday with a broken wing. I've set it." A wounded hawk, fierce eyed, the epitome of the wilderness, came out on his wrist. "Gentle, old man!" he warned, "Gentle! Feeling better?" The hawk twisted his neck about as if coquettishly pleased and climbed to Prendegast's shoulder. Prendegast reached up and stroked the brown body.

"In a single day!" breathed Stuart.

Prendegast looked at the sky and spoke as if to himself.

"There is nothing," he said softly, "I cannot bend to my will." His gaze returned to Stuart. "You have yet to see the prize of my collection," he added. Into his eyes had crept a look of sly, immense egotism—this time Stuart was not in doubt.

They went by the back door into the house. Stuart's morning had been one of surprises, but he was still unsatiated enough to mark with what comfort and spare charm the long hall was furnished, and the two rooms opening off it, and to listen, as well, with astonishment to Prendegast's sudden burst of conversation. Prendegast had forgotten, it seems, his animals and his power over them, and had completely laid aside suspicion concerning his visitor. He became, out of nothing, talkative and charming. It was almost as if he wished to conjure Stuart as he had his hawk and his badger and the magpie. "Here are some sketches," he said, opening a drawer. "I paint," he announced ingenuously. Stuart was finding it difficult to keep in touch with reality. He wondered if it wasn't better to forget reality and to accept wholeheartedly the curious world in which apparently his host lived—madman, creature of the woods, or, perhaps, only lost, inarticulate artist.

For the half hour that followed, and all during the excellent lunch of eggs and milk and hot bread, which Prendegast prepared with adroitness, the talk was of painting and music; of prima donna and exhibition; a conversation in which Stuart felt himself to be at a disadvantage. "Of course," said Prendegast, "I never get a chance nowadays to hear anything in person, but, barring that, the phonograph is an immense comfort." He closed his eyes. "Music," he added, grandiloquently, "is the food of splendid thought. The world drops away"——

He opened his eyes and spoke in the manner of tired royalty. "I always sleep on hot days," he said. "Make yourself at home. I am asking you," he continued, "to spend the night. If I like you I will ask you to stay longer. But I never ask a stranger to stay more than one night to begin with." He arose from the table. Stuart felt himself dismissed. He was not sorry; he wanted time to correlate the fantastic experiences of the last few hours; moreover, in his mind was a vague determination to set out in search of the girl of the night before. He had already lost many hours. He realized with some chagrin that since he had come to Prendegast's he had thought very little about her.

He accepted his host's peculiar invitation dryly. "Thank you!" he said, and walked through the hall to the porch, inhaling, with the content of a well-fed man, his cigarette. The green meadow slept in the heat of the early afternoon and the lake had become still beneath the overpowering sun of 2 o'clock. The magpie drowsed in his cage. Suddenly he awakened and twisted nervously on his perch. "Yes! Yes!" he shrieked angrily. "Get to hell out of here!" He ruffled his wings. A long shadow fell athwart the porch. Stuart looked up; his hand stole to his waist, and then he remembered that he had left his revolver and cartridge belt in the hall inside. A faint cold breeze seemed to stir the hair at the back of his head. "Don't worry!" said an amused voice behind him. "It's only Jane!" Prendegast was leaning against the door jamb, watching him. A mountain lion leapt noiselessly onto the porch and, passing Stuart with superb indifference, came to Prendegast's outstretched hand. "This is the prize of my menagerie," said Prendegast. "I raised her from a kitten. It is easy to tame all things if you have the trick." He was staring at the lake, in his eyes the look of immense, almost splendid, complacency.

Perhaps, of all the amazing episodes of that amazing time, the least surprising to Stuart was the discovery that the girl was Prendegast's daughter. Once or twice during the last 15 hours the possibility of this had occurred to him, for he had heard Prendegast's story—at least the countryside version of it—and he knew that there had been two children, a son and a daughter, and that the latter had been taken East by wealthy relatives to be educated. But he had dismissed the supposition as absurd. What would a girl be doing with this, to speak in the most careful terms, uncertain father?

Prendegast slept in some unknown recess of the ranch house, and at his feet, so Stuart imagined, slept Jane. Stuart was left entirely to himself and the spacious fir scented afternoon. The magpie slept in his cage. Stuart went back to the barn and saddled Jimmie, and rode at a walk down the winding wagon track to the main road. It seemed to him that Wyoming, a country given to unexpectedness and fantastic drama, was outdoing itself; as if he was some medieval adventurer wandered into a forest of enchanted moods.

The mountain lion was the last bizarre touch to a bizarre day. The road stretched before Stuart, shadowy, mistily swimming in light filtered through branches, like a lane beneath green-gold water; his eyes brooded upon its farthest vistas; coming towards him he saw the girl. She was dressed in the brown riding breeches of the day before, and on her head was a small hat of orange felt. Stuart pulled up his horse, dismounted, and walked forward, his sombrero in his hand. About this second meeting was the same inevitableness as there had been about the first. The girl did not see him until he was almost at her side. From her bowed head he imagined that she was deep in thought.

"Good afternoon," he said, casually.

She started and looked, the blood suddenly mounting to her cheeks.

"O!" she said. "So it's you, is it?"

"I told you it would be," he answered, calmly, despite the beating of his heart.

"Where are you staying?"

"With a Mr. Prendegast."

Her brown eyes became troubled. "My father?" she asked. She hastened to cover up her revealing anxiety. "How strange!"

Stuart shook his head; he allowed his surprise at her statement to remain unspoken; after all, it was what he had half expected. "No, it isn't," he said; "it isn't strange at all—it was bound to happen."

She clenched her hands at her sides with unexpected fierceness; then she looked up and laughed with a brave effort at lightness. "Don't!" she begged. "Please! We must be very sensible. You will stay here a day or so, and then you will go away, and then it will be all right. Meanwhile we'll enjoy ourselves. We can sit down, and you will tell me about yourself, and I'll tell you all about me. There isn't much to tell."

There wasn't. She remembered nothing of her earliest years, and the rest had been the ordinary school days of the only child of well-to-do parents, until she discovered that she wasn't their child at all, but had a father, lost in some remote spot, whom she had set out to find. Stuart realized that here was a trembling, hidden idealism; a young, twisted, probably agonizing moral attitude; cruel as most young morality is. Her father needed her, but, then, her foster-parents had loved her. He did not know what to say. He felt helpless in the face of a fixed idea.

"And you intend to stay here forever?" he asked.

"Of course! What else could I do? He is all alone. I have thought about it so much."

"Let's be getting up to the house," he said grimly.

They walked for a while in silence before he spoke. "I hardly thought I would find you here," he said. "There was no sign of you about the house."

"I spend most of my time in the woods," she answered. "They are new to me, but I am learning to know them."

Prendergast was sitting on the step of the porch, smoking a pipe. Jane curled up beside him. His attitude was one of abstraction. He chose to remain unconscious of Stuart's and the girl's approach until they paused at his feet. Then he looked up and spoke in the disinterested voice he had used when he had first met Stuart. "You know each other already," he said.

Stuart had an inspiration. "O, no!" he retorted, hastily. "I came upon your daughter in the road."

The clear but tortured idealism that had displayed itself in their recent talk seemed to seize the girl. "We met last night," she interjected, breathlessly.

Prendegast regarded Stuart with a speculative eye. "It's time," he said to the girl, with a certain harshness in his voice, "for you to be getting supper. Sit down, Mr. Stuart."

He stared at the lake for a long while before he spoke. "You know my history?" he asked abruptly.

Stuart felt himself growing cold, but he nodded with all the calmness he could assume. "Yes"—— he hesitated. "Nevill"——

"Damn Nevill," said Prendegast. "He knows nothing about it; neither does anyone else. My daughter is a pretty girl, Mr. Stuart; I think perhaps you should hear." He stared again at the lake. "To put it frankly," he concluded, in the same disinterested voice, "my father claimed he was not married to my mother, so Margaret"——

"You mean"—— exclaimed Stuart.

"Exactly! Of course he was, but I cannot prove it, so in the eyes of the world it doesn't help me much, does it? Let me continue—it will only take a few minutes of your time. My father, then, abandoned my mother. He was a man of excellent family—probably your grandfather knew him; he came from New York, too—my mother was a seamstress. My father, however, was a gentleman"—there was scorn in the carefully modulated voice—"and he pensioned my mother off handsomely. She was foolish enough to use the money in educating me. Education and a lack of paternity make an uncomfortable combination. I discovered that rather early in my career. Had I been a drinking man I probably would have been by now comfortably dead; as it was, I came West. I worked as a cowpuncher for a while and then as a miner, but I wanted the loneliest country I could find, and so I am here. I have been here 22 years. Each stick and stone of this place is mine, and I have made it what it is. Curiously enough, after I had been here a year I met a girl of my own class who seemed willing to share my solitude, although she knew all about my history. I was still young enough to dream that my luck had turned—I was still young enough to wish, as time went on, for more money. For her sake, you understand—I had enough for myself. I wrote back to a man I had known in college, asking him to join with me in cattle ranching. He accepted and came out here. The climax of the story I think you know—do you?" He paused abruptly and stared at Stuart with narrowed eyes.

Stuart nodded his head hesitatingly.

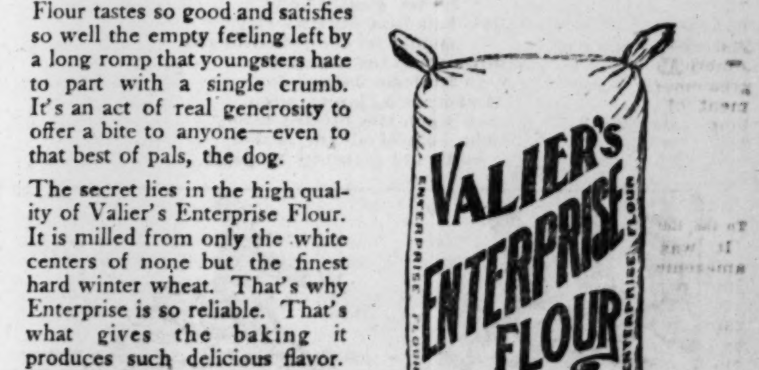
Separable saucepans are a gas economy as three foods can be cooked at the same time over one burned instead of just one as is the case with the ordinary shaped saucepan.



"It's some bread, pup!"

HOME made bread baked with Valier's Enterprise Flour tastes so good and satisfies so well the empty feeling left by a long romp that youngsters hate to part with a single crumb. It's an act of real generosity to offer a bite to anyone—even to that best of pals, the dog.

The secret lies in the high quality of Valier's Enterprise Flour. It is milled from only the white centers of none but the finest hard winter wheat. That's why Enterprise is so reliable. That's what gives the baking it produces such delicious flavor.

The high quality of Valier's Enterprise Flour makes it economical, too. It prevents needless, expensive failures. In addition, a sack will go further.

Finality.

"John, I hear burglars."

The dutiful husband arose and tiptoed bravely out. After undue delay he returned.

"Oh, John," said the wife, "what kept you so long? I was so afraid they had overpowered you."

"No, dearie, they were stealing the victrola from the people across the hall and I just made sure that they got all the records."—Life, New York.

The Family Luxury.

As Good for the Purpose.

She was of a somewhat flighty appearance, showing rather more silk stocking than her years warranted, especially for a visit to the vicarage. The Vicar's small daughter, aged 6, opened the door to her and surveyed her with some disapproval.

"Is the Vicar in?" inquired the visitor.

"He's gone out," was the reply. "But mother is in, and she'll pray for you, you miserable sinner."—London Post.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

UNCLE SAM DECLARES A CUT IN.

The income tax collector have been trying to make Joe Jackson make a return of the bribe he is said to have received for throwing the 1919 baseball championship.

No more we labor under
The inexact belief
That it is loot or plunder
Which makes a man a thief.
For it has been decided
That thieving is a trade
Which all may ply—provided
The income tax is paid.
The wiles the grafter uses
Won't get him in a jam
Unless the wretch refuses
To split with Uncle Sam.

The bandit who requests you
To back against a wall
And ruthlessly divests you—
While backed there—of your all,
Must make an inventory
Of every single cent,
For he would die before he Would cheat the Government.
And though a soulless blighter
The average bandit is,
His conscience will be lighter
If Uncle Sam gets his.

Too bad that they neglected
The supertax on crime
That might have been collected
In Mr. Ponzi's time.
Too bad that outlaws clever
Should be compelled to pay
No income tax whatever
In Jesse James' day.
And if we'd clap taxation
Upon the bootleg trade,
The debt of all the nation
Would presently be paid!

Might as Well.

Even Abe Lincoln, though never noted for his beauty, had some pride in his appearance. One day, the story is told, while going down the street, he met a man who looked him over closely and drew a gun on him.

"Stranger," the man said, "I swore that if I ever met anyone homelier than I was, I'd shoot him on sight."

"Brother," drawled Abe, "if I'm homelier than you I reckon you might as well."—American Legion Weekly.
